FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

The Naval War College

By VICE ADM. R. L. CONOLLY, USN
President, U.S. Naval War College,
Newport, R. I.

SEA power, its scope and application in national defense and in support of the overall strategy required by the nation for survival in the complicated and shifting pattern of the modern world, is the core of existence of the United States Naval War College.

Vice Adm. Conolly

The challenging complexity of problems of naval warfare, which led to the establishment in 1884 of this, the oldest of the armed services' war colleges, has increased vastly since that time. The early surface problems posed by the introduction of armored ships, sea-going torpedo boats and high powered guns, with the passage of seventy years, now involve air, submarine, amphibious, and mine warfare; and economic, psychological, atomic and yet other types which must have the comprehensive attention and appreciation of the naval officer. With this knowledge there must be a deeper understanding of the significance of sea power as an instrument to be used in the application of complete national power. The study of sea power, then, in its many ramifications — not only as a military force but in its relationship to all other factors contributing to national power—is inherent to the Naval War College.

Stated concisely the official mission of the College is "to further an understanding of the fundamentals of warfare with emphasis on their application to future naval warfare in order to prepare officers for higher command."

It is noteworthy that in carrying out its mission the concepts of its founder, Commodore Stephen B. Luce, USN, and his immediate successor Captain Alfred T. Mahan, USN, have endured until today, despite the requirements of ever changing curricula, schedules and techniques. Those policies laid stress on academic freedom and the inclusion of officers from all the armed services. The Marine Corps actively participates in the Naval War College on both staff and student levels as an integral part of the Navy. About fifteen per centum of the present student group are of the Army and Air Force. Along with the Coast Guard and State Department these services are also represented in the staff operating the College. There is also a small

Hope Grows SecDef Wilson Will Go Easy In Ordering Commissaries Shut Down

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson—to the extent the law permits him—will go easy in ordering Service commissaries closed by the 31 Dec. deadline.

That is the hopeful opinion of high-ranking civilian and military leaders at the Pentagon, anxious over the imminent peril to Service morale.

There is even speculation that Secretary Wilson, who has been publicly encouraged by the White House to investigate major factors affecting Service Attractiveness, will attempt, if possible, to prevent the closing of a single commissary until Congress has had a chance to review the situation in detail.

In such action, Mr. Wilson undoubtedly would receive enthusiastic endorsement from Chairman Dewey Short (R-Mo.) of the House Armed Services Committee, who has decried the attacks on "fringe benefits," notably the commissaries and post exchanges.

The threatened closing of commissaries came about when the Senate Appropriations Committee pulled a legislative "end run" around the Armed Services Committees and reported a hastily devised veto-proof rider to the 1954 Appropriations Act.

This rider says that after 31 Dec. no funds can be used for commissaries unless the Defense Secretary certifies that the grocery items "are not otherwise available at a reasonable distance and reasonable price in satisfactory quality and quantity to the military and civilian employees of the Department of Defense."

The words "reasonable" and "satisfactory" are the key guidelines and on their interpretation by Mr. Wilson much will depend.

Informed officials told THE JOURNAL this week that Mr. Wilson will use his authority to keep commissaries open to the maximum extent possible.

He is now awaiting compilation of data from all the Services on commissary operations throughout the United States.

No Army "5 Per Centers" in Selections

The Army has dropped its "five per cent" promotion authorization for the upcoming selections to lieutenant colonel, major and captain.

The new boards will consider only those officers in the basic zones of consideration, previously listed in THE JOURNAL.

The decision to eliminate the "five per cent" promotions is expected to remove inequities which resulted from varying attitudes of field commanders as to what constituted "highly outstanding" service and also the difficulties encountered because of inadequate records outside of Washington.

A high-ranking Army official said the decision to forego the out-of-zone temporary promotions this year was made primarily on the basis of recommendations from top field commanders.

General Matthew B. Ridgway, fresh from field command himself, endorsed the action, which was concurred in by top civilian officials.

Army spokesmen stress that field commanders can still submit to Washington reports which cite officers as being "highly outstanding" and deserving of special promotion consideration, but the selection boards will not take action on such reports.

However, it may be that provision will be made for such temporary promotions, on a greatly reduced basis, at a later time.

The "five per cent" provision is known to have created difficult personnel relations when officers, recommended by

SECDEF INFORMS PUBLIC

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson this week began a series of weekly press conferences aimed at better informing the American public about contemporary defense activities and problems. At the conference, he discussed the Research and Development program. The full text of his remarks appears on the next page.

AF Slates Temporary Officer Promotions

The Air Force, its officer personnel strength now on a firmer basis following recent Defense Department action, this week disclosed plans for temporary promotions to colonel, lieutenant colonel, major and captain.

THE JOURNAL publishes on Page 156 the complete text of the implementing message sent to the field.

First promotions will be announced on 15 Feb., with monthly increments thereafter.

Commands will report the number of eligible officers to USAF Headquarters by 9 Nov. and on 16 Nov. will be given promotion quotas.

Selections will be made by major command boards, except for promotions to colonel, which will be centralized.

Air Force officials did not state the number to be promoted. It can be taken for granted, however, that the promotions will be far less than announced.

All together, there were about 9900 temporary officer promotions to colonel, lieutenant colonel, major and captain in the last months of fiscal year 1953.

Air Power Dominant In JCS Force Report

Accelerated buildup of the Air Force to a 120-wing strength by next June—a year ahead of schedule—and continued Air Force expansion to 127 wings as quickly thereafter as possible are recommended to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson by the Joint Chiefs of Staff after the first stage of their "new look" at defense forces.

Whether the 143-wing goal has been dropped entirely or deferred is not certain.

At the same time, the Joint Chiefs urge that the strength of the other Services remain stabilized, at least for the present, except for an increase in air defense activities, notably in Army anti-aircraft battalions.

The JCS report says that the Army should continue with 20 combatant divisions.

Its members are unanimously agreed that the Navy should maintain the present force of about 400 combatant ships and the Marine Corps should continue with three divisions and three air wings.

The Joint Chiefs do not say how much this will cost. Congress voted $34.3 billion for the current fiscal year.

The JCS paper makes no definite recommendations as to overall money and manpower requirements needed to operate the Armed Forces during the next fiscal year, feeling that this is a determination to be made by the Defense Department and the civilian officials of the separate Services.

The JCS report indicates, however, that the total size of the Armed Forces will not be significantly changed, although the "more defense per dollar expended" objective probably will mean some reduction in personnel.

The Joint Chiefs, viewing the global military situation, call for the achievement of what Defense Secretary Wilson has described as a "possibility," namely a 120-wing Air Force by the end of the current fiscal year, instead of at the end of fiscal '55 as originally forecast.

Then, with planes already on order, the momentum would be employed to reach a 127-wing force in the fiscal year beginning next 1 July.

In making the decision regarding Air

SecDef Outlines Dept's R & D Program; Supports Fundamental Research, He Says

The full text of Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson's statement at his press conference 6 Oct. on the subject of the Defense Department's research and development program follows:

"THE RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM of the Department of Defense is fundamental to achieving and maintaining a reasonable posture of defense for the nation. Technology, through providing us with superior weapons and the knowledge of how to use them, offsets the possible greater numerical superiority of a potential enemy and gives us a military force superior to any in the world.

The Department of Defense has and must continue to have an effective research and development program. We must keep our weapon systems ahead of all potential enemies in time of peace with the hope that through being prepared we will deter a possible war. The interval between the onset of aggression and destruction is so short that we cannot afford to delay our development of new weapons until an enemy strikes. We must recognize that the weapons required to repel aggression cannot be and are not conceived and developed overnight. It takes months and years to perfect and produce the new weapons and counter-measures which we are depending upon to insure our safety.

The Department of Defense is at present spending more money on research and development than it has at any time before in history. Actual expenditures for research this year will be about $1 billion 300 million and we have approximately 8000 specific research projects financed by these funds. This is approximately the same as the amount of money appropriated by Congress for research and development for FY '54.

DURING THE FOUR YEARS 1947-48-49-50 the amount spent averaged about $500 million per year, so we are currently spending about 2½ times the money for research and development that we did before the Korean war. Perhaps we are currently spending a little more than the minimum requirements in an effort to make up for the lack of expenditures in previous years.

In addition to the expenditure described above, there are certain other indirect research and development costs in the military programs themselves that could be appropriately charged to research and development if they could be segregated. There is always research and development that accompanies the production and testing of newer types of weapons, and in addition there is the pay of military personnel devoted to such forward looking programs that is not charged specifically to research and development. Some people have estimated this type of research and development for all of the services to amount currently to an additional 1 billion dollars per year.

For example, the Research and Development Command of the Air Force alone has approximately 25,000 people in its research and development and testing activities which are not charged specifically to appropriations for research and development.

At present the Department of Defense specific expenditure for research and development accounts for about 70 per cent of the total federal government expenditure for research and development of all kinds.

THE MAJOR PORTION of the research and development program of the Department of Defense is undertaken by industrial laboratories and by universities, colleges and other non-profit organizations. In the last fiscal year approximately 70 per cent of the research and development money was spent on outside contracts with non-government agencies. Approximately 60 per cent went to industrial organizations and 10 per cent to non-profit institutions.

Actually a greater portion of the research and development work is done outside the Government than might be indicated by these figures as a sizable amount of the research and development money spent within the Government for research and development is in connection with administration, supervision or liaison with groups performing the research and development work on contract.

In the past, approximately 3 per cent of the Department of Defense research and development funds were transferred to other Government agencies. This practice developed during the war. Over a period of time it led to a number of Government agencies establishing complete laboratories that were working exclusively on Department of Defense work. We initiated a review to determine whether some of this work should not be done by the Department of Defense agencies or on contract with private industry.

A TYPICAL EXAMPLE of another government agency involved in this type of work was the Bureau of Standards. Some of the work has been transferred from the Bureau of Standards to direct supervision of the Department of the Army. All research and development work which is being performed by other government agencies is being closely scrutinized and may continue to be assigned to such agencies based upon the following criteria:

(a) That the other governmental agency normally functions in the province of the research and development work in question and that it is performing routinely a related task.

(b) That the other government agency has facilities or competence that are suited uniquely to the task and can absorb the Defense Department project with greater objectivity, efficiency or economy than could any other organization.

It is the general plan under this policy that a governmental agency will not be placed in a position of competing with private industry, all other factors being equal.

The Department of Defense supports basic or fundamental research.

First, to provide a flow of fundamental knowledge of the sort that the military establishment needs, now and in the future, in connection with the practical problems of weapons systems development, and Second, to maintain contact with the scientists of the country so that the scientists are encouraged to be interested in fields of potential importance to defense. This contact serves to make the services aware of new scientific findings, to provide a base for the prompt mobilization of scientific effort in case of severe emergency, and it has a wholesome influence on the planning of the research and development programs of the armed services.

CONGRESS HAS GIVEN the primary responsibility to the National Science Foundation for governmental support of basic research for general national needs. It is therefore the policy of the Department of Defense to restrict its support of basic research to those fields which have a high probability of

New Labor Secy. Won

High Praise At Pentagon

The swearing in at the White House yesterday of Assistant Secretary of the Army James P. Mitchell to be Secretary of Labor takes from the Defense Department a staunch advocate of action to safeguard the morale and welfare of Servicemen and their families.

Mr. Mitchell, who won great praise and respect from civilian and military leaders of all the Services during his Pentagon tenure, spoke out on numerous occasions—particularly at the celebrated Quantico Conference—on the problem of Service Attractiveness.

He held the complete confidence of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and therefore was a forceful spokesman for the Army at all inter-Service conferences and in relations with the Defense Dept.

providing useful results to the missions of the Department of Defense. We work very closely with the National Science Foundation. In this respect, Defense support of work in some of the more theoretical sciences has been reduced in favor of National Science Foundation support in those fields.

Last spring we used an advisory committee under Dr. Warren Weaver of the Rockefeller Foundation and including Dr. Alan Waterman of the National Science Foundation for advice and guidance in formulating basic research policies. Our policies to date have been in line with the recommendations of that committee. We plan to continue to seek outside advice of this type in handling the basic research program of the Department of Defense.

WE HAVE TAKEN NO STEPS TO DE-EMPHASIZE BASIC RESEARCH. We have made some adjustments and shifts of emphasis among technical fields in reviewing our basic research activity for relevance to the Department of Defense missions. Additional readjustments may take place as we continue to study the matter. Except for some factors of this kind, we intend to support basic research this coming year at substantially the same levels as we are now doing. This is somewhere between 25 and 30 million dollars per year.

Much of the basic research activity supported by the Department is performed within the laboratories of the nation's universities and non-profit research foundations. In addition, of course, applied research and development is performed by contract with such institutions. Last year the Department of Defense supported a total dollar volume of research and development within universities and non-profit institutions of $130 million. Of this, $25 million supported basic research. It is believed that the expenditure rate at the universities and non-profit institutions will be maintained at about the present level.

THERE IS A FEELING IN UNIVERSITY CIRCLES that there should be a higher proportion of basic research, without the restrictions of military security, in the government-supported work at universities. We believe, where there is any such divergence of views or conflict of interest, that the research work, if it is government financed, should be sponsored and underwritten by the National Science Foundation. We are interested in overall studies that are being made of the impact of government supported work on universities.

Mr. Quarles, the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Research and Development, and his organization will periodically review all our research and development projects to see that the money is being spent efficiently, that progress is being made, and that the objectives have not been forgotten."

Maj. Gen. Ruffner Acting Army Pub Info Chief

Maj. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, who commanded the 2d Infantry Division in Korea, this week was given a temporary assignment as Army Chief of Information and will serve in that capacity until 1 Dec. when Maj. Gen. Gilman C. Mudgett is expected to arrive in Washington from the Far East.

General Ruffner has been deputy to Assistant Defense Secretary for International Affairs Frank C. Nash.

The Deputy Chief of Information, Brig. Gen. Frank C. Dorn, who had been Acting Chief following the departure of Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks to be Second Army CG at Ft. Meade, Md., is expected to retire at the end of November.

Pentagon observers were surprised that General Ruffner should be given this assignment for such a short period of time, although it is noted that General Mudgett originally had been expected to arrive about 1 Nov.

Gen. Ruffner

Comdr. Verdin Sets New Jet Mark in Douglas F4D

Navy test pilot Lt. Comdr. James Verdin, USN, has established a new world's airplane speed record of 7534 miles per hour. The previous record 7373 mph, was set by the British Vickers supermarine Swift late in September.

Flying the Navy's new high-speed carrier-based jet interceptor, the Douglas F4D Skyray, Commander Verdin made four passes over the speed course at Edwards Air Force Base, Muroc, Calif.

The fastest pass was made at a speed of 7614.414 mph. The three other passes were made at speeds of 746.075, 746.503 and 759.499. Two passes were made in each direction to minimize the effects of the wind.

Following the speed runs, Douglas Aircraft officials said the Delta-wing fighter next will be given actual work on a carrier at sea.

The Skyray, first flown on 23 Jan. '51, has a triangular platform wing with rounded corners, and is tailless. A slender nose extends forward from the unorthodox wing to provide a cockpit. The plane's name derived from its resemblance to the ocean-dwelling manta-ray, or "devilfish."

In 1951 the plane reached a speed of 1,238 mph, the fastest any pilot craft has ever flown. Because the plane was carried aloft and dropped from another plane, however, the speed is not recognized officially.

Decision Due Soon On Engr. Wrangle

Now that Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has all nine Assistant Secretaries on the job, a decision is expected soon on the controversial issue of whether or not the Air Force will be allowed a separate engineer organization. Involved are more than 40,000 personnel and possibly $50,000,000 a year.

The problem has been kicked around from one Pentagon office to another for more than a year with a considerable lack of unanimity, even within the individual Services, namely the Army and Air Force.

Basically, however, the situation is this. The Air Force would like to have its own engineer organization, trained and equipped to meet specialized requirements, on a basis similar to the separate Air Force Medical Service, although some Air Force authorities feel that with a manpower pinch on, it might be better to let the Army provide as much support activity as possible.

Generally, however, the Air Force position is that the Army has its own Corps of Engineers, the Navy has a Civil Engineer Corps plus the Seabees and that the Air Force should have its own distinct engineer organization also.

At the present time, the Air Force relies on the services of some 35,000 SCARWAF—Special Category with Air Force—personnel who are Army officers and men assigned to engineer duties with the Air Force.

The SCARWAF personnel are charged against the Air Force manpower and budget ceilings. There is no controversy there.

However, it requires about 10,000 Army training spaces to provide the back-up for the SCARWAF organization. It is the contention of some Army officials that the Air Force should either have its own set-up or else be charged for the men and money involved in training personnel for SCARWAF assignment.

Within the Army, there is some disagreement. The Corps of Engineers is of the opinion that establishment of a separate engineer organization in the Air Force would result in duplication and, in time of war, dangerous competition for limited resources in technicians and materiel.

The issue is one which touches varied areas of the new Defense Department reorganization. The Assistant Secretaries for Manpower and Personnel, Supply and Logistics, Comptroller, Property and Installations are among those involved and quite possibly the Assistant Secretary for Legislative and Public Affairs.

It is not believed that Mr. Wilson will permit the matter to go unsettled much longer.

In short order, he is likely to call for the summation of arguments from all quarters and then reach a final decision.

Adm. Calls Attention To Conflict In Service Pay

Rear Adm. Daniel V. Gallery, Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training, called attention last week to the conflict between service pay and the so-called "fringe benefits."

In Washington, D. C., on an annual inspection of air reserve units, Admiral Gallery answered questions about the need to make military careers more attractive.

As other Defense leaders have done in recent weeks, he noted that constant whittling away of fringe benefits is detrimental to the Services. He said "Every time a new military pay bill is introduced, some one points out that we have all these extra benefits and therefore do not need more pay."

"Then, as soon as the pay bill proposal is dropped, the fringe benefits—commissary privileges, medical care for dependents, and so forth—are attacked."

He said another detrimental morale factor has evolved because "it is fashionable nowadays to snipe at the 'brass.' Admiral Gallery said he dislikes the term 'brass' because 'It has come to mean a stupid stuffed shirt.' He said, 'Maybe some of us are, but not all of us. We couldn't have a promotion system where nobody but stuffed shirts got to the top.'"

CAPT. RICHARD V. GREGORY, USN, reads his orders to relieve Rear Adm. William G. Beecher, Jr., USN, (standing behind him) as Commanding Officer of the Naval Amphibious Training Unit, U. S. Atlantic Fleet. The ceremony took place at the U. S. Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va. Rear Admiral Beecher will continue his duties as Chief of Staff to Commander Amphibious Training Command, of which NATULANT is an element.

Gen. Campbell CIC Chief; Gen. Barth To Europe

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens this week named Maj. Gen. Boniface Campbell, Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, to succeed Maj. Gen. George B. Barth as Chief of the Counter-Intelligence Corps.

Brig. Gen. H. B. Powell, Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, for Manpower Control, was designated to replace General Campbell.

Brig. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who will return from command of the 187th RCT in the Far East, will succeed General Powell.

General Barth is slated for assignment in Europe, Secretary Stevens said.

Brig. Gen. Joseph C. Odell, Assistant to the Army Deputy Quartermaster General, will command the Quartermaster Research and Development Center at Natick, Mass., the Army announced.

All Korea Veterans

Significant to note is the fact that when General Westmoreland arrives at the Pentagon, the three G-1 general officers will all be veterans of combat service in Korea.

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, commanded the 2d Infantry Division in the successful Heartbreak Ridge conquest.

General Powell won distinction as commander of the 17th Infantry Regiment, the only U.S. unit to reach the Yula River.

General Westmoreland, at 39 one of the youngest general officers in the Army, is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy in the class of 1936. The official Army Register for 1953 lists him as a permanent major. He was made a brigadier general on 7 Nov. 1952.

Army Stars in Making As Retirements Impend

The departure of General Mark W. Clark from Japan this week for return to the U. S. and retirement on 31 Oct. stimulated speculation as to possible promotions for a number of top Army officers.

In this regard, the Army also has announced that Lt. Gen. E. Jenkins, a corps commander in Korea, will return to the U. S. for assignment to the detachment of patients at the U. S. Army Hospital, Ft. Benning, Ga.

General Jenkins probably will be retired for physical disability upon his return.

Not counting the retirement of General Clark and the prospective retirement of General Jenkins, the Army already has some top-spot vacancies which it soon will fill.

Certain for promotion from two-star to three-star rank are Maj. Gen. Walter L. Weible, designated to succeed Lt. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe as Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations and Administration, and Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, Second Army commander.

THE JOURNAL reported in the issue of 26 Sept. that the Army is authorized 27 lieutenant generals, but has only 25 on active duty.

The Army, with eight four-star officers, currently is one below its authorized strength of nine in this rank and there will be another vacancy when General Clark leaves the service.

It is permissible for four-star vacancies to be transferred to lieutenant general category.

Thus, for example, should General Jenkins retire and Lt. Gen. William M. Hoge, newly named USAREUR CG not be promoted to four-star rank, there would be five lieutenant general vacancies.

In addition to Generals Weible and Parks, there is a possibility that the two corps commanders in Germany, Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin and Maj. Gen. Ira P. Swift, will be given temporary promotions to lieutenant general.

This is foreseen as a possibility since there is no apparent reason, with the end of fighting in Korea, why the corps commanders in Korea should outrank those in other areas overseas. Normal rank for an overseas corps commander is lieutenant general.

Boost Patient Morale By Name Identification

Army hospital personnel have been ordered to wear identification at all times while on duty to promote "mutual confidence" between patients and hospital attendants.

The Army Medical Service declared that the "early establishment of rapport between the patient and all hospital personnel serving him can be facilitated by ease of identification." The patient in his adjustment to hospital life realizes a more secure feeling when he can identify by name those who are entrusted with his care, the letter added.

To Lay Cornerstone For AFIP's Atom-Proof Bldg

A specimen showing injury from a World War II atomic bomb blast and representative slides of pathological studies will be among objects to be placed in the cornerstone of the new atom-bomb proof Armed Forces Institute of Pathology building in ceremonies scheduled for 10:00 A.M., Tuesday, 20 Oct.

During the ceremonies, which will be held at the construction site at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health and Medicine Dr. Melvin E. Casberg and Brig. Gen. Raymond O. Dart, MC, USA-Ret., a former Director of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, will lay the cornerstone. In addition, Dr. Casberg will deliver the principal address.

Invited to the ceremonies are the Surgeons General of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Public Health Service, Executive and Congressional leaders, prominent medical educators and physicians and high ranking medical officers of the armed forces. The program will be presided over by Brig. Gen. Elbert DeCoursey, MC, USA, present director of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology. Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, MC, USA, Commanding General of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, will welcome the guests.

The Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, now located on Independence Avenue, expects to move into the new building late next spring. Construction to date is on schedule.

The new building, one of the first of atomic bomb-proof construction in Washington, will have five stories above ground and three below. Concrete blast walls reinforced with steel enclose the main portion of the new building. Except for an administrative wing, the entire structure will be windowless. High intensity lighting will be installed throughout the structure.

Guests Named

On the platform in addition to Dr. Casberg, Brig. Gen. DeCoursey, Maj. Gen. Heaton, Brig. Gen. Dart and Chaplain McLaughlin and Graham, will be:

Secretary of the Army, Robert T. Stevens; Assistant Secretary of Defense, W. J. McNeil; Maj. Gen. George E. Armstrong, Surgeon General of the Army; Rear Adm. Lamont Pugh, Surgeon General of the Navy; Maj. Gen. Harry G. Armstrong, Surgeon General of the Air Force; Dr. W. Palmer Dearing, Deputy Surgeon General of the Public Health Service; Vice Adm. Joel T. Boone, MC, USN-Ret., Chief Medical Director of the Veterans Administration; Dr. Charles S. Keefer, Special Assistant for Health and Medical Affairs to the Secretary of the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare; Dr. Robert A. Moore, Chairman of the Scientific Advisory Board, Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

Architects drawing of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology's new building, now under construction on the grounds of the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C. Cornerstone laying ceremonies will be held 20 Oct. The building will be ready for occupancy next Spring.

Col. Hauck Named To Two-Star Liaison Post

Widely known on Capitol Hill and particularly among Armed Services Committee members because of prior service, Col. Clarence J. Hauck, jr., USMA '31, was named by Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens this week to be Army Chief of Legislative Liaison.

Colonel Hauck, likely soon to be promoted to brigadier general, probably before Congress reconvenes, replaces Maj. Gen. Miles Reber, who will assume duties with U. S. Army Europe about 1 Nov.

During WWII, Colonel Hauck, who holds a law degree from Georgetown University in 1940, was a Congressional Liaison Officer.

He has been on duty in the Office of the Chief of Legislative Liaison since last September, when he returned to the U. S. from duty as Special Assistant to the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe.

Thus, in his SACEUR assignment, Colonel Hauck worked with Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, USA-Ret., now a key White House Aide on legislative matters and himself formerly Chief of Army Legislative Liaison.

Sam Houston, Tex.

To Build More Quarters for Families in Europe

General Charles L. Bolte, then commander of U. S. Army Forces in Europe, announced recently that more housing will be built to accommodate families of servicemen in his command.

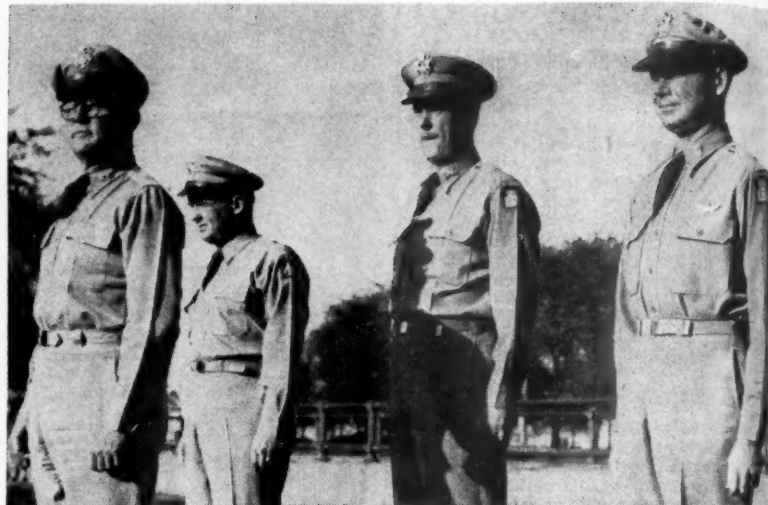

The housing shortage in the command is such now that most dependents have a long wait for adequate quarters.

"This, of course," General Bolte said, "is entirely too long and I am glad to announce that we are finally in a position to bring about a future reduction in this waiting period."

The initial housing program proved inadequate when the size of the command was increased and additional funds were unavailable.

However, General Bolte said that new monies are being allotted for the program and construction will proceed immediately to provide sufficient accommodations to satisfy the total housing requirements of the command.

"I realize that during the months which must intervene until new construction is ready for occupancy we will be faced with a continuation of many of the undesirable morale factors which are directly attributed to our current shortage of housing," General Bolte declared. "I wish to emphasize, however, that relief in the form of additional housing for our dependents is definitely in sight, that individuals who are entitled to family-type accommodations will be assigned housing as rapidly as it becomes available and that dependents will be moved to Germany expeditiously to occupy properties assigned."

Maj. Gen. Cummings, 51, Will Be Ordnance Chief

Maj. Gen. Emerson L. Cummings, a 51-year-old 1924 West Point graduate, will succeed Maj. Gen. E. L. Ford, USMA '17 who will be 61 in December, as Chief of Ordnance on 1 Nov.

General Ford will retire after 36 years service.

General Cummings, who was commissioned in the Corps of Engineers before transferring to Ordnance in 1936, was on duty in the Office Chief of Ordnance and at the Tank Automotive Center during most of WWII.

Maj. Gen. Cummings

He was sent to Europe in April 1945 as chief of the industrial division and in January 1946 became deputy chief of ordnance in the ETO, later designated the European Command.

General Cummings returned to the U. S. in July 1947 to attend the National War College. After graduation, he was named Assistant Deputy for Research and Development to the Assistant Chief of Staff for Logistics and in September 1950 took command of the industrial division in the Office Chief of Ordnance.

He was appointed Assistant Chief of Ordnance in July 1951, retaining his assignment as head of the industrial division.

Owner goes 'round the world in 40 seconds!

With this new multi-wave portable you can circle the globe in the time it takes to twist a dial.

That's because the new RCA Victor Strato-World radio is blessed with Electronic Band Spread Tuning. Instead of being squeezed together on one-band segment, short-wave stations are in spread formation across the dial of your 7-band Strato-World. You tune Europe or Asia just as you do local stations.

Other Strato-World improvements?

There's smart, sophisticated styling—a genuine cowhide case and a chrome-satin trim to the instrument panel.

There's real one-handed portability, too. The Strato-World is a trim 23 pounds, including batteries...or it can be plugged into an electrical outlet.

Here is the performance, the engineering and design you've come to expect from RCA Victor, a division of RCA. See this globe-trotting, pace-setting portable at your RCA Victor dealer's.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

President Names New

Navy Under Secretary

President Eisenhower late last week nominated a new Under Secretary of the Navy, Thomas S. Gates, jr.

Secretary Gates, a Naval Reserve Commander, who has served as Director and National Vice President of the Navy League of the United States, succeeds Charles S. Thomas who was named Assistant Secretary of Defense (Supply and Logistics) this summer.

Mr. Gates has been associated with Drexel and Company of Philadelphia since 1928, and has been a partner of the firm since 1940. In addition, he has been associated with the Beaver Coal Corp., and John Wagner & Sons, Inc.

Commissioned a lieutenant, USNR, in April 1942, he completed the air intelligence school at Quonset Point, R. I., and served there until 1943 when he was assigned to the USS Monterey as an air combat intelligence officer.

In June 1944, he became Flag Lieutenant to Rear Adm. Calvin T. Durgin and participated in the invasion of Southern France. Later, he was transferred to the Pacific and served in the Philippines, Iwo Jima and Okinawa campaigns. He was released to inactive duty in October 1945.

A member of the Philadelphia Club and the Gulph Mills Golf Club of Bridgeport, Pa., Secretary Gates is a trustee and member of the Executive Board of the University of Pennsylvania. He and Mrs. Gates, the former Millicent Anne Brengle, have four children: Millicent Anne, Patricia S., Thomas S. III, and Katharine Curtin.

Gen. Kreiser To Cherry Point

Brig. Gen. Alexander W. Kreiser, jr., has reported to the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N. C., as Assistant Commander of the Second Marine Air Wing.

Navy Convenes TAR Board

Boards to select officers of the Naval Reserve for the Navy's TAR program—Training and Administration of the Naval Reserve—were convened 28 Sept.

From Reserve officers on active and inactive duty who applied, the boards are allowed to select about 1400 for the TAR program. Several weeks of deliberation are expected.

"TAR" is the new terminology for the old Continuous Active Duty program which was set up in 1946 to take care of an expanded Naval Reserve.

The Navy said TAR officers will be rotated in the Reserve program and also to duty with the operating forces to keep them abreast of the latest fleet practices and to enable them to maintain professional competence.

Members of the TAR selection board are Rear Admirals Harold O. Larson, USN; Irving M. McQuiston, USNR; Lester K. Rice, USN, and Thomas Burrows, USN; Captains Edward H. Eldredge, USN; Alvin O. Prell, USNR; Harry R. Horney, USN; Edward N. Teall, Jr., USN; Charles E. Harrison, USN; Firman F. Knachel, USNR; Lelf S. Melsom, USNR; Harry Sartoris, USNR; William C. Huges, USNR; William L. Patten (SC) USN; Wesley H. Randig (CEC) USN; Horace W. Risteen (CEC) USN; Herman S. Zeve (MC) USNR; Jesse V. Westerman (DC) USN; Harold T. Dinsmore (SC) USNR, and LCDR William C. Young, USN, Recorder.

Gun Factory Celebrates

The U. S. Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C., celebrated its 154th anniversary on 4 October.

Commanded by Rear Adm. Tom B. Hill, it is responsible for developing and turning out new Naval guns, rockets, rocket-launchers and mines. It was the Navy's first shipyard and today is the largest Naval ordnance plant in the world.

REAR ADM. JOHN H. BROWN, USN, (right), All-American football guard, U. S. Naval Academy, '13, receives a National Football Hall of Fame award in a mid-field ceremony between the halves of the Navy-Dartmouth game, 3 Oct. Presenting the award is Mr. William M. Hollenback (left) of Philadelphia, himself a former All-American from University of Pennsylvania and a member of the Board of Directors of the Football Hall of Fame. Looking on is Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, USNA Superintendent.

Marine Corps May Approve New Metal Rank Insignia For Wear By Enlisted Men, Field Tests Underway

New metal rank insignia have been designed for enlisted personnel of the Marine Corps and tentatively approved by General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr.

If officially adopted for general wear the new insignia will be the first metal rank devices in United States history to be worn by enlisted members of any military service.

Made of black metal (electro-plated brass), the new insignia are miniature chevrons of the same design as the cloth chevrons now authorized, but only one-fifth the size of the present cloth insignia. They will be attached to shirt collars and jacket shoulder straps by clutch-type fasteners, and also worn on caps and helmet coverings.

Now Being Tested

At present the new insignia are undergoing field tests to determine their suitability and practicability. If the tests prove successful it is expected that the Marine Commandant will give his approval for their use throughout the Marine Corps for wear on utility, field and organizational clothing.

Marines currently wearing the new rank insignia are members of the 1st Marine Division in Korea. The field tests, second in a series, are expected to be completed in November, with final approval or disapproval coming shortly thereafter.

The need for rank insignia which could be transferred quickly from one item of uniform wear to another became apparent during combat operations, JOURNAL sources said.

Men who are relieved of front-line duty normally are trucked to a shower unit in the rear areas where they can clean up and be outfitted with a change of clothing. As they enter the shower tent they deposit their soiled and worn clothing in a giant laundry hamper; at the other end, after showering, they are handed freshly-laundered items. In the transition, of course, they lose their rank.

Several Advantages

Use of the new metal rank insignia will permit officers and enlisted men to use combat clothing interchangeably, thus cutting down on sizing requirements. It also will preclude the necessity of the men sewing or stenciling new insignia on their uniforms after passing through the shower units.

Other advantages of the new insignia include lower cost (4-5 cents compared to about 13 cents for the cloth-type), greater durability and better uniformity (since some utility uniforms are now stenciled and some bear cloth insignia). The new rank devices also will not be so easily discernible to enemy snipers. They are of a dull finish which does not reflect light.

Studies on the new insignia have been underway in the Marine Corps since 1950 and the first tests were made under combat conditions.

The Army said this week that it also is considering use of the metal chevrons for combat. In the Marine Corps it is expected that they will be worn at continental bases as well.

Col. Batterton Commands TF

Col. Booker C. Batterton, USMC, has been designated Acting Commander of the 1st Provisional Marine Air-Ground Task Force, Kaneohe Bay, T. H.

Maj. Gen. James P. Riseley, former head of the Task Force, has been detached for new duty as Deputy Commander, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Headquarters said this week that General Riseley's successor has not been selected but that a general officer will be ordered to the billet.

Commands USMC Depot

Col. LeRoy Hauser, USMC, has taken over command of the Marine Corps Supply Depot, Camp Lejeune, N. C., succeeding Col. P. W. John.

Colonel Hauser, has just returned from Korea where he served as 1st Marine Division Supply Officer. Previously, he was Chief of Staff of the Marine Corps Depot of Supply in Philadelphia.

Colonel John, who commanded the Depot for the past three years, has received a new assignment with Air, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, at El Toro, Calif.

Marine R-40s In Far East

Marine Corps R4Q Flying Boxcars now are operating in the Far East theater following transfer of Squadron VMR-253 from El Toro Marine Air Station at Santa Ana, Calif., to Itami Air Base in Japan.

Fifteen Marine Flying Boxcars have arrived at Itami and are air-lifting rear area supplies to Korean units of the First Marine Air Wing and First Marine Division. The squadron is commanded by Lt. Col. Carl J. Fleps. It is the first Marine troop and cargo carrier squadron to serve in the Far East.

The Thrills come double with TT Dynaflow*

THE GREATEST
BUICK
IN 50 GREAT YEARS

Try this:

Take the driver's seat of a 1953 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow, and do the usual things.

Ignition on and engine started. Lever into Drive position. Parking Brake off.

Now—press that pedal.

Instantly, you hear a whisper of power flow — feel your shoulders sink into the seat back — see the speedometer needle swing upward.

From a standing start, you're up to cruising pace in a handful of happy seconds — so brilliant is the getaway of any new 1953 Buick with TT Dynaflow.

But note that this is getaway with silky grace.

This is getaway with the complete and utter smoothness of a jet plane rising, of a gull in glide, of a skier on a slope.

This is getaway with the infinite smoothness of a single, progressive build-up of suave motion — unchecked and unbroken in any way by a shifting gear.

We think you'll find it a joyous experience —and a thrill upon thrill—when you try this spectacular new TT Dynaflow.

So why not visit your Buick dealer for a sampling?

That way you will also discover the power and room and comfort and ride that are part and parcel of every Golden Anniversary Buick — the greatest Buicks in fifty great years.

U. S. AIR FORCE

AF Board Will Name

Perm. Lt. Cols. and Maj.s.

The Air Force will convene a selection board on or about 9 Nov. to choose Regular captains and majors for promotion to higher permanent rank.

The Air Force said that the following numbers would be selected:

Majors—302, 283 of them on the AF list, 4 Medical, 3 Dental, 1 Veterinary, 4 Medical Service, 3 Chaplains, 3 Nurse and 1 Women's Medical Specialist.

Captains—368 AF, 8 Medical, 4 Dental, 1 Veterinary, 9 Medical Service, 2 Chaplains, 9 Nurse, and 2 Women's Medical Specialist.

A message to the field said that names of permanent majors of below listed promotion lists will be submitted and that consideration may extend through the names of the officers listed herewith, with the "fully qualified" method of selection to be employed:

AF (excl. of WAF)—DesGeorges, Herbert E., 5699A.

Med—Rizzolo, John, 19225A.

Den—Garrison, Grayson, 18894A.

Vet—McIntyre, James C., 18993A.

Med Sv—Currier, Clyde C., 19432A.

Chap—Hingston, John H., 18741A.

The Air Force communication added that all permanent majors of the Nurse and Women's Medical Specialist lists will be considered under the "best qualified" method.

Here are the names of the permanent captains who probably will be at the bottom of the zone of consideration, with the board to use the "fully qualified" method.

AF—Werner, Crowell B., 10944A.

Med—Class, Robert N., 19662A.

Den—Herring, Woodward M., Jr., 19628A.

Vet—Neurauter, Lloyd J., 19011A.

Med Sv—Gaines, Robert L., 19496A.

Flying "taxi" that open up new roads

Miraculous rescue flights over Korean combat zones put helicopters in the spotlight. Soon, 'copters like these three leaders will open up more and more new "roads" in America's skies.

Powered by always dependable, air-cooled engines built by Lycoming, these helicopters are already used by industry as flying "taxi" to transport executives from plant to plant. Soon, major cities will get aerocab service from midtown terminals to airport flight lines. Later, every state in the union will get super "taxi" service between cities . . . and even commuter service from suburbs to hearts of business sections.

Dependable Lycoming power has helped these leading helicopters achieve outstanding safety records. This is another Lycoming contribution to America's progress in the air; another reason we say: "For efficient, dependable, air-cooled power . . . look to Lycoming!"

—SECRETARY OF DEFENSE CHARLES E. WILSON.

Priority For Defense. Indications of a growing disposition to give defense needs a higher priority than budget balancing or tax cutting were clear this week.

President Eisenhower himself opened the way in his Boston speech when he declared that "there is no sacrifice—no labor, no tax, no service—too hard for us to bear to support a logical and necessary defense." Then came Representative W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.), chairman of the Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy, with the statement that he doesn't "find it hard to choose between financial ruination for my country and atomic devastation." He advocated the outlay of $10 billion additional for defense, said that the situation is desperate, and that he is willing to surrender hopes for a balanced budget and tax reductions—goals he had sought for 20 years.

From the other side of the Capitol came word from Senate Majority Leader William F. Knowland. Recently returned from a tour of 11 countries, he expressed the opinion that the United States had better reinforce its defenses if Russia should try to scuttle the Korean Peace Conference. If Russia should try to delay and block proceedings, he declared, "we ought to put our defenses in the strongest possible position."

Senator Henry Jackson (D-Wash.), a former member of the Joint Atomic Energy Commission, also warned that the American people are worried about their defenses and are ready to continue to pay high taxes to reinforce them. Senator Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), an unwavering advocate of defense-first, reiterated that "The great bulk of our defense chips should be placed on our capacity for instant and devastating atomic retaliation."

It cannot be said that these expressions from the Congressional leaders portend a complete change of attitude. It is evident, nevertheless, that there is some weight-shifting toward the side of the defense-firsters and that economy at the expense of Armed Forces will not have as easy a time as it did in the first session of the 83d Congress.

Save the Commissaries! Reports that Secretary of Defense Wilson will be liberal in the exercise of his discretionary powers in enforcing the rider on the appropriation bill aimed at the closing of Service Commissaries are most timely and welcomed. Under the terms of the rider he must act before 31 Dec. 1953. Congress will not reconvene until January, so that any attempt to get the provision repealed cannot be effective until after the Secretary of Defense has acted under the law.

It is evident, however, that there is a rising opposition to the law in the Department of Defense, among the citizenry, and, consequently, in Congress. There is reasonable basis for hope that if the opposition is given a fair hearing, which they certainly were not in the present instance, Congress may modify or repeal the rider. The situation would be virtually untenable if the Secretary in the meanwhile orders a wholesale closing of the Commissaries. On the other hand if he takes the mildest possible action, the Commissaries might eventually be saved.

The Service wives and widows who, as reported in last week's JOURNAL, are seeking the co-operation and support of others in the field must hope for the latter action. In the meantime, it would be most helpful if all those concerned would write letters to the Congressmen from their home districts and to their Senators telling of the hardships to be wrought by closing commissaries and asking their support in keeping them open.

Fringe Benefits

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It is indeed a privilege to write you expressing my opinion concerning your editorials about the commissary legislation and the effect of it and other legislation which would take "fringe benefits" away from servicemen. I feel that you are informing the public of true existing facts.

It is not a matter of complaining about what we do not have or about additional things we want, but a sincere desire and need to hold on to what we already have.

If those who are puzzled over this lack of morale and rising discontentment could have seen the "disbelief" in the faces of servicemen when told that Congress had acted to take away our commissaries, they would well understand. The section was put into the Appropriations Bill and of course passed. This "disbelief" turned into an ugly thing not meant for the hearts of our servicemen and their families—"suspicion"—of "well, what will be next?" So we were spanked good and hard; we have cried and dried our tears and now we are angry.

We need these fringe benefits as they are called for they actually do compensate for a big part of our salary. We need them for what they are worth in dollars and cents as well as the feeling of security and well being.

The public should know that we pay a percentage of our bill in the Commissary for the cost of operation. They should know that by taking such privileges away from us it would not help the small business man or would it lower taxes. We do not want them to think we are sponging.

The public should know we don't enlist for "fringe benefits." In the case of my husband it wasn't even mentioned. In fact, up until five months these benefits were not available for us—consequently my two children would have gone without a lot of real necessities if I had not worked part time. I encouraged my husband to reenlist and will do so again for I know he loves being an Airman. Due to twice being called to duty by the Air Force his civilian career was too interrupted to hold his interest or offer security. Since I have encouraged him to stay in and prayerfully set my mind to make the best of any and all separations I will fight to see that his morale will be of the kind that makes a good Airman.

The wives of these men must organize. The purpose is so great. It would, I sincerely believe, make the peace we seek more of a reality.

It is always jokingly said "never underestimate the power of a woman"—it can be sincerely said, "never underestimate the power of a service wife."

Thank you, for any help you can give us. Here's hoping the wives of our servicemen can help solve one of the Nation's critical problems—that of maintaining a good, stable and happy Air Force as well as brother services.

Non-Coms in Command

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It was very interesting and somewhat amusing to read the front page article in your 26 Sept. issue relative to Master Sergeants possibly being required to fill some officer billets due to the RIF program for officers.

It seems rather strange to see E-7's referred to in this way, when many of us can recall some 20 years back when there were many cases of E-4 enlisted men "commanding" platoons, to say nothing of some more time in office and more experience in the vital importance of research to the entire defense effort (and being farther removed from the budget cutting fervor of last Spring), Mr. Wilson now gives his full support to a broad and comprehensive research and development program—including basic research. In fact, probably remembering his adverse remarks of a few months ago, Mr. Wilson now stresses that the Department "supports basic or fundamental research" and "We have taken no steps to de-emphasize basic research." This is good news.

cases during World War I when even Corporals and buck Sergeants found themselves in "command" of companies in such incidents as the Chateau Thierry campaign.

Of course nobody who has not had service of the pre-war II variety or in World War I can appreciate that there previously was a time when NCO's practically "commanded" anything or everything that came their way without the slightest trouble or confusion—it was merely just one of those things that was expected. In such cases they did their job quite well and "carried on."

Just what all the excitement could be over E-7's taking over platoons is more than I can see.

Lost Incentives

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Many thanks to you for your untiring efforts to make the USA more secure by increasing the attractiveness of military career.

The appointment of a committee or a commission has been going on since the Hook Commission of 1948—5 years ago. Nothing has been done to date.

Recently there have been the Moulton Commission, the Womble Committee, the Hannah report, speech by this secretary, speech by that secretary, etc.

In the 5 Sept issue of THE JOURNAL you say, what we must have then is: (1) a concrete program; (2) a continuing campaign of education; and (3) Action!

To the above 3 requirements, I recommend a fourth one be added. It should be a committee to psychologically prepare the American people to lose the next war. With no incentive for capable youngsters to come into the Service to employ our wonderful technological advances, the result of the next conflict can be disastrous.

Hitting Back Hard is Best of Defenses Against Air Attack, Says Gen. T. D. White

There is no fool-proof shield against an enemy air attack, but this country is developing a mode of defense capable of resisting an aggressor all the way to the target area and back again.

This defense-in-depth strategy, General Thomas D. White, Vice Chief of Staff for the Air Force, said, is the best method of reducing the air effectiveness of the enemy and imposing losses.

There are three kinds of defenses against air attacks, none of them, whether employed separately or collectively, 100 per cent effective, he said. They are: ground weapons, such as anti-aircraft guns and missiles; fighter-interceptor planes and air-to-air guided missiles, and long-range strategic bombers.

"Except for the highly important function of Civil Defense, the very last line of air defense is a line or circle of anti-aircraft weapons to be fired from the ground," he said.

"Like all types of purely defensive weapons to be fired from fixed positions, the new anti-aircraft missiles have a limited application. Their range is very short when compared to that of even the fighter airplane; they are more subject to electronic jamming; and they cannot be quickly concentrated or shifted from one point of danger to another. These are weapons designed for that portion of an air war to be fought directly above our heads, which is the last place above the earth we want to have to fight. Nevertheless, the capabilities of air attack today are such that some part of any major air war may be fought above our heads."

Interceptor - fighter planes, General White said, provide the next-to-last defense. They are small and fast, but of limited range and endurance as compared to other types of combat planes. These planes, the General said, can expect to fight at a disadvantage "so great that they may never find the enemy except for elaborate radar systems both on the ground and in the air."

However, the most potent weapons of air warfare and the quickest and surest air defense are the long-range strategic bombers, General White stated.

"Not only can these bombers threaten the enemy's own long-range planes, bases and installations on the ground, but also the deepest sources of supplies and materials that make it possible for the enemy air force to be armed, maintained and operated," he said.

General White said that every means of air defense must be augmented and strengthened, from the last resort defenses at home to the first and foremost defense of our long-range bombers.

"The ability to hit back harder and farther than we can be hit is today, as it has been in the past, our surest and most indispensable defense," he said. "This ability is increasingly difficult to maintain, but it can be maintained and it must be maintained."

2. Do you believe the American people have lost confidence in their military servants?

3. Do you believe the government has broken faith with you by "changing the rules in the middle of the game"?

The Waves' Problem

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

A whole bouquet of orchids to THE JOURNAL for the attention that has been focused on the policy (or lack of policy) of the Navy with respect to the promotion of Wave officers. Those most concerned could not have done this for obvious reasons.

As you have stated, the result has been very low morale among the Waves of the Regular Navy, and it has had a definite bearing on the lack of interest shown by junior Wave officers, USNR, in the integration program. There is no subject more widely discussed when Waves get together and none of greater concern to the majority of those who, on the basis of career opportunities offered, applied for, were selected, and transferred to the Regular Navy in 1948.

You have mentioned selection boards in 1949 and 1952 for the promotion of women to commander. Among Wave officers there is doubt that there was a "true" selection board in 1949 inasmuch as none was publicly announced, nor were Wave officers who met requirements for consideration at that time under the Integration Act individually notified of a board. The four selected were the then Assistant to the Chief of Naval Personnel for Women which billet carries the temporary rank of Captain, and three officers who had been "spot" commanders for some time.

The statement of BuPers officials that "the 'needs of the Service' do not require any additional Waves in the rank of commander" has been noted. It would indicate a definite lack of planning, particularly when considered with Admiral Sprague's statement in support of the Integration Act of 1948, "Once they are in the Regular service, then they are guaranteed a career, assuming their conduct and efficiency are satisfactory."

Maybe we should assume that the 19 present LCDRs who have had four years in grade by the end of this fiscal year do not fulfill the requirements of satisfactory conduct and efficiency—we doubt that.

Your articles have not made mention of the fact that there are currently on active duty at least seven Reserve Wave commanders. Would these billets, if available to Regulars, provide promotion opportunities? Most of these have been on continuous active duty since 1942 or 1943 and two, who have held the rank of commander since 1 Jan. 1950, applied for transfer to the Regular Navy in 1948.

Those most affected by the stalemate in promotions are the Lieutenants. Unless they are on a promotion list for LCDR before 30 June 1955, three will be separated with a total of 13 years service; likewise an additional 40 will experience forced attrition by 30 June 1956. Most of these "career" officers will have attained an age at which it will be difficult to find positions commensurate with their education, training, and experience. Some of this group have felt there would be greater security so far as duty with Navy is concerned, if they resigned their regular commissions and obtained commissions in the Reserve with a request for continued active duty. At least they would not be forced out at the end of 13 years service.

The proposed revision to the Integration Act might have an immediate effect on the promotion of Lieutenants but what does it offer the Lieutenant Commanders?

There are those, and they aren't too few in number, who are of the opinion that present policies tend toward nullifying the Integration Act by letting the Regular Wave program "die a natural death," through retirement of Lieutenant Commanders at age 50, and forced attrition of Lieutenants. A small nucleus of Wave officers would remain to be augmented by a large number of Reserves on continuous active duty.

Truly, from the above, you can see that this issue is most important to women who were selected by the Navy, presumably in keen competition, to be Regular officers.

A USN WAVE OFFICER

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Six instead of seven USNR commanders are being RAD by 1 Jan. However, BuPers states that the billets thus vacated cannot be used for USN personnel because they were set up on a temporary basis.)

COMMENT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS—

Further Approaches to a Russian Meeting

FROM numerous directions in the past week have come indications that, despite Moscow's recent surliness and evasiveness with regard to the invitation to a Big Four meeting, there will be further tenders. The key for these expressions was set by President Eisenhower himself ten days ago with his favorable reference to the possibility of a non-aggression compact with Russia, carefully designed so as to protect American interests, and by the remarks of a half-reluctant Secretary of State last Tuesday on the desirability of "reducing friction." There have been no recent communications from London, but Sir Winston Churchill's original proposal of months ago, defeated as it was, must be credited with a large measure of responsibility for the patience and earnestness now evident in what we must recognize as the new American attitude toward Russia. That attitude, gradually becoming clearer, is distinctly one of good will, backed by caution. The tenseness of the post-war years is becoming unbearable to many in the west, and the growing costliness of arming to the teeth is becoming a cause of grave anxiety throughout the western world.

THE H-BOMB DEVELOPMENT is slowly forcing a reconsideration of policy. America's fortunate leadership in that development has assured us security for a time, by reason of Russia's lag in technology, but there is a growing awareness that our relatively favorable position is a temporary thing. Defense Secretary Wilson's estimate that we have a three year edge is not universally accepted, and even three years is a long way from eternity. It is no secret any longer that numerous nuclear scientists, conscious of the stupendous destructive powers of the H-bomb, whether it be ours or an enemy's, have pressed vigorously for a complete realignment of American foreign policy, aimed simply at halting the international armaments race by non-aggression pacts looking toward a long peace.

This argument has had effect in the highest quarters, and has led to some hasty planning, and then to correction of planning. At one time "Operation Candor" was all but ordered into effect—this calling for a series of speeches, by the President and several cabinet members and other principal advisers; it was designed to inform the public of just how serious a nuclear war would be, and of just how much peril there is of such a thing in the fairly near future. The enterprise was called off on the sound reasoning that any such series of speeches would disturb the public, instead of reassuring it. The need obviously is for informing the public, but a necessary part of information on an alarming subject is the knowledge that the nation's leadership is unalarmed.

THIS IS THE PRESIDENT'S TASK, undertaken in earnest last Tuesday in his speech at Atlantic City, in which he gravely warned that nuclear energy is too mighty a thing to be employed in war. He cited five "musts"; the last four call for better understanding of other nations or greater helpfulness toward them; the first of the five "musts" calls for maintaining our own strong posture of defense and improving it. It is apparent that there will be more speeches in that vein, and it is probable that they will become more pointed, especially in one respect.

That respect is indicated by the President's reference to the peaceful uses of atomic energy, of which we are bound to learn a great deal of a surprising nature in the near future. For hydrogen-fusion research, much newer than uranium fission research, is reported to have bounded forward so rapidly that scientists of repute are freely predicting some breath-taking developments. The military hopes for the H-bomb have been widely published; the industrial hopes from its twin, industrial employment of this vast release of energy, are just beginning to emerge. And with this scientific development of our time we now are beginning to see a momentous relationship to American foreign policy, yet to be announced from the White House, and at a not very distant time. The Eisenhower-Dulles hints of readiness to consider a non-aggression pact with Russia is only a modest start.

TRIESTE, whose mingled Italian and Slav population and whose important strategic position for war as well as trade have long been a cause of anxiety, has finally moved the Western powers to realization that settlement is called for. Permanent settlement is a little too much to look for in 1953, but a modus vivendi, acceptable to the aggressive Tito and to the naturally uneasy Italians, if available, would do fairly well for a time. The plan under consideration appears dubious in that it gives Italy more than it gives Yugoslavia—namely actual possession of Zone A (including Trieste) to balance Tito's claim to actual possession of Zone B. Yet that actual possession, with British and American troops withdrawn, would at least set up a solid frontier and create an actual sovereignty, whereby Italy could thereafter negotiate on equal terms with Yugoslavia. It is the most substantial of the settlements yet proposed. There are a good many Britons and Americans who would be glad to see it accepted.

BRITISH GUIANA has been for generations an apparently serene exception in South America. Numerous Latin-American neighbors have been uneasy about their governments on many occasions, but British Guiana rested easy—until this past week when a cruiser and two frigates from the West Indies station moved a small task force of troops toward Georgetown, to be followed in a few days by larger-scale forces from Britain, including the Argyll and Sutherland battalion, lately in Korea. The Guiana troubles began with a series of strikes on the sugar plantations, but took serious form only with the announcement by the left-wing People's Progressive Party of its intention to restrict the powers of the colonial authorities and establish full local self-government. The strike leaders are Communist party officials, and the implication is of a Communist uprising in the making, apparently unrelated to Red threats in nearby Latin republics but particularly threatening by reason of the extreme liberalism of the colony's new constitution and the leftists' announced readiness to exploit it to Communist advantage. The wide extent of the strikes and the celerity with which troops are moving in from Great Britain combine to make martial law a probability of the next few days.

EXERCISE WELDFAST, in the eastern Mediterranean, came to an end on Tuesday with a demonstration of American amphibian techniques, well supported by all elements, on a Thracian beach. The entire NATO maneuver, under joint command of Admiral William M. Fechteler and Admiral Lord Mountbatten, was concerned with the problem of protecting Turkey, NATO's most easterly member, from being cut off by enemy attacks through either the Balkans or the Turkish straits. The basic purpose was as usual the testing of command and communications as well as plans, and Admiral Fechteler regarded this initial large-scale exercise as of historic importance in developing so high a degree of cooperation.

SERVICE ATTRACTIVENESS proponents to an increasing degree will substitute stress on realistic, but difficult to define, morale factors with rugged dollars and cents and manpower strength arguments which none can dispute. Sec'y Talbott has declared the Air Force could save millions of dollars and reduce its size if reenlistments increased. His remarks are said to be making a strong impression on other business men Pentagon leaders. It's no secret that Defense Sec'y Wilson would like to cut manpower if he could do it without jeopardizing combat effectiveness. Sec'y Talbott has indicated how this can be done: raise attractiveness of a military career, thereby raise reenlistments and strength cuts become tenable. In the Air Force, for example, one out of every four officers and airmen is involved in training. The ratio could go higher.

TOUGHER SELECTIONS and a higher "pass-over" rate are likely in current and future permanent promotion action by all the Services. Forced attrition rates dropped below normal during the fighting in Korea when Reserve officers were being called to duty involuntarily.

A LEGISLATIVE LIAISON modification is seen an Army likelihood. One possibility is its reconsolidation with public information; another is transfer of LL to the Judge Advocate General. The Army Organization Advisory Committee is looking into the problem. Meantime, a colonel has been named legislative liaison chief replacing a major general. The colonel probably will win a star in his new post, but that would still be one rank down from the former status of this office.

WARNER BROTHERS disclosure of plans for a major film production based on the life of Gen. George S. Patton is another feather in the Army pubinfo cap. During the past year, the Army has been involved in practically twice as many film deals as the Navy, Air Force and Marines. The competition will grow keener; it's a good bet the other Services will ease up on restrictions and will show a greater willingness to play ball with Hollywood.

WHATEVER ITS FILMDOM PUBLICITY, the Army is taking an unheralded back seat to the other Services when it comes to showing off and telling about new weapons. Defense Secretary Wilson turned down a proposal to demonstrate the Army's new heavy tank (actually it's two years old) at an Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., ordnance show this week. Army Sec'y Stevens, for his part, is said to be giving a more rigid construction to an order from the Defense Sec'y restricting public demonstration of new weapons than are other Service chiefs.

BONELESS TURKEY soon may find its way onto Army menus. Tests are being conducted by the Quartermaster Board at Ft. Lee, Va., to determine whether soldiers prefer turkeys with or without the bones and the relative costs per serving. The Air Force and Navy have been using boneless turkeys for some time to take advantage of 50 per cent space and 35 per cent weight savings.

PERSONNEL EVALUATION pays off and conversely costs heavily when capability estimates are faulty, an Air Force manual reports. When a basic recruit fails to measure up, the cost is put at $500, with $17,000 set as the expense when an aviation cadet fails.

A QUARTER-MILLION DOLLAR TV system has been installed at the U. S. Naval Academy and is now in operation in 19 classrooms and a lecture hall, providing supplementary classroom instruction. Shows, "aired" from an Academy basement studio, permit demonstrations of items which couldn't easily be viewed otherwise, and also allow key instructors to lecture simultaneously to scattered classes.

ENCOURAGING HOME TOWN STORIES on Reservists leaving active duty, the Navy has told its pubinfo officers that doctors, dentists, lawyers and other professional men, barred by codes of ethics from commercial advertisement of their return to civilian life, will find such a story "worth its weight in uranium."

THE CARRIER VALLEY FORGE chopped 7,800 miles off a recent trip from the West Coast to Norfolk, Va., by scraping through the Panama Canal. Eleven hours were required to maneuver the big flattop (her gun tubs removed and her port elevator raised above the deck) through the narrow confines of the Canal, and in transit she lost some paint.

PROJECT SPRING CLEAN, recently completed by the Air Materiel Command, resulted in a half billion dollar adjustment. Declared excess was $241,008,442 worth of materiel and $266,760,148 in engines.

ADDED EVIDENCE the Services are gearing policies for long-haul rather than short-term personnel requirements is the Navy's decision to make all enlisted promotions, except those to CPO, on a permanent instead of temporary basis. Previously, permanent advancements were made only to pay grades below E-5.

GENERAL LEMUEL C. SHEPHERD, JR., has asked the Chief of Naval Operations to take a check on the number of Marine officers assigned to Naval Operations and recommend which if any of them can be returned to the Corps. At present, one Marine general and nine colonels are assigned to the office of the CNO and five other colonels are assigned to duties within the Naval Operations structure.

CONFIRMATION OF A JOURNAL REPORT in the 5 Sept. issue that a new inquiry will be made into the Reserve Forces of all the Services comes from Asst. SecDef Hannah. He has declared publicly that "our whole plan for the Reserve structure needs a new look." He says "a drastic overhaul may be involved."

UNUSUAL WORDING was employed by Army Sec'y Stevens this week in announcing a new post for Maj. Gen. George B. Barth, Army CIC Chief. He will be given an "important assignment", the Sec'y reported. The Army, in shifting general officers, rarely says that any particular assignment is "important," since all two-star officers are considered to be filling positions of high responsibility.

THE DEFENSE DEPT. is certain to gain wide public understanding and consequent support as a result of SecDef Wilson's decision to hold weekly press conferences. Pentagon old timers recall that no Service Secretaries have held weekly meetings with reporters since WWII.

Will Your RETIREMENT INCOME FADE AWAY?

It won't if your current earnings are wisely invested.
Don't let inflation sap the purchasing power of those retirement dollars you are counting on. Through convenient purchases of Mutual Investment Fund shares you can acquire dividend paying securities out of current earnings.

Nearly a million Americans, including many military and naval personnel, have invested over 3 billion dollars in Mutual Investment Funds—and the number grows daily. Learn how a Mutual Investment Fund purchase plan can help you supplement your fixed-dollar retirement income. Just mail this advertisement with your name and address.

derived from United Services complete low-cost, non-profit insurance program exclusively for armed forces officers. Either commissioned or warrant officers are eligible. More than 150,000 now are enjoying the protection of this 31-year-old institution. Through USAA, insurance coverage at minimum cost on automobiles, household and personal effects is made available in Japan, Western Europe, Puerto Rico and the Philippines, as well as in the States. Claims are quickly settled, even in out-of-the-way places. USAA is an organization of commissioned and warrant officers who pool their funds for mutual protection. Over the years, this plan has resulted in consistently large savings for members. In 1952, over 130,000 officers shared in $3,200,000 dividends returned to USAA policyholders. You, too, can save through membership in the USAA.

What's New at AiResearch

AIR INTELLIGENCE SYSTEM WITH

7 SENSES!

New AiResearch transducer-computer package feeds facts to any or all aircraft electronic systems!

A new electronic air intelligence system, completely engineered and manufactured by AiResearch, provides better flight information and fire control for American jets!

Extremely sensitive transducers measure angle of yaw, angle of attack, acceleration, free air temperature, total temperature, static pressure, total pressure and pressure ratio. The ingenious computer combines this information and translates it into voltage commands for direct use or as correction factors in fire control and navigation systems. This operation is continuous and instantaneous.

The AiResearch system obsoletes many of the sensing circuits now used in military aircraft. Composed of elements which are small, light and highly efficient, this system is reliable and easy to maintain.

Thus AiResearch pioneers another advance in avionics to further accelerate the progress of high-altitude, high-speed flight!

■ NEWPORT, R. I. The Navy Medical Department Officers' Wives' Club of Newport, R. I., had their last meeting of the year at the Officers' Club.

Mrs. John L. Enyart, wife of Capt. John L. Enyart, commanding officer of the Naval Hospital, Newport, R. I., is president.

Mrs. Enyart conducted the meeting, and election of officers was as follows: Secretary, Mrs. L. Marshall Harris; Treasurer, Mrs. William H. Hartnett; Board members, Mrs. Robert Baker, Mrs. Vernon I. Moss and Mrs. W. H. Snyder.

Appointments as chairmen of committees were: Mrs. William C. Roland, Membership; Mrs. Thomas A. Glennon, Hostess; Mrs. Vernon I. Moss, Invitations; Mrs. Harold Fleischer, Program; Mrs. Donald Miller, Decorations; Mrs. Richard Lawrence, Historian, and Mrs. George G. Burkley, Publicity.

■ FT. MONROE, VA. Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Chief of Army Field Forces, officially received a picture of Dr. John J. Craven, Union Army doctor, in behalf of the Jefferson Davis Casemate Museum here last week during a ceremony in the museum rooms on the old fort.

It was the late Dr. Craven who cared for the health of President Davis during his imprisonment at Fort Monroe and was responsible for his removal from the now-restored Jefferson Davis Casemate cell to Carroll Hall in another section of the old fort.

The picture, a reproduction of a photograph newly discovered by the descendants of Dr. Craven in New Jersey, was presented in a ceremony and program arranged by the Committee for the Fort Monroe Museum and Jefferson Davis Casemate. Dr. Chester D. Bradley and Col. Richard C. Mallonee are co-chairmen of the committee and General Dahlquist is honorary chairman of the committee.

■ FT. LEAVENWORTH, KANS. Almost 1,000 new members of the Women's Club, wives of officers in the Command and General Staff College and the Associate Class, were introduced to the numerous post activities at a recent meeting.

Mrs. Keith Ewbank, president of the group, presided at the meeting. Mrs. Henry I. Hodes, wife of the Commandant, and honorary president, was introduced, and General Hodes welcomed new wives.

Other officers of F.L.W.C. are Mrs. Coleman Thacher, vice-president; Mrs. Ernest Samussen, secretary; Mrs. John Kinzer, treasurer; and Mrs. Reinhold Reide, assistant secretary.

Committee heads are Mesdames H. E. Eltt, programs; M. J. Dugas, hospitality; Howard Levy, decorations; K. R. Linder, posters; George Godding, welcoming; C. E. Welsh, publicity, and J. N. Howell, Halloween party.

Activities chairmen are Mesdames E. S. Adams, art; W. B. Monkeiwicz, bowling; D. A. Pilliod, social bridge; J. S. Davenport, duplicate bridge; Paul Casper, choral; A. M. Wolfe, Mother's Club; R. C. Cameron, Needle Club; Mark Brennan, golf; John Beeson, tennis; Norman Carnes, Great Books.

■ MORGANTOWN, W. VA. Col. Douglas G. Gilbert was recently appointed Professor of Military Science and Tactics at West Virginia University. Colonel Gilbert's previous assignment was as commanding officer of the Giesen Detachment of the Northern Area of Command in Giesen, Germany.

Lt. Col. Gordon L. Beach, who was assigned to the University during the spring, has been assigned as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Potomac State School of West Virginia University located at Keyser, W. Va.

Maj. Jack Boswell was also assigned as Assistant Professor of Military Science and Tactics at West Virginia University following a tour of duty at Ft. Knox, Ky.

A picnic was held at Suncrest Park at Morgantown, W. Va., on 4 Oct. to welcome newly assigned personnel and their families at the University. Both Army and Air Force personnel of the Military Department of the University attended. Newly assigned personnel were Colonel and Mrs. Gilbert, Major & Mrs. Boswell, M/Sgt. & Mrs. Petrovay, M/Sgt. & Mrs. Olson. Newly assigned Air Force personnel included Colonel and Mrs. Compton, Captain & Mrs. Kent, M/Sgt. & Mrs. Markus, S/Sgt. & Mrs. Bowling and S/Sgt. James Crooks.

■ CHICAGO, ILL. Col. John L. Schaefer, formerly at U. S. Army headquarters in Europe, is now Chief of the Military Personnel Procurement Division at Fifth Army headquarters. The Division has responsibility for Army and Air Force recruiting activities in 13 midwestern and western Great Plains states, which comprise the Fifth Army and 10th Air Force area.

Col. Robert A. Harris, USAF, is newly assigned to the post of Deputy Chief of the Division. He comes to Chicago from Army-Air Force Personnel Procurement Division, Office of The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, in Washington, D. C.

Lt. Col. Stuart R. Petersen, previously in charge of Fifth Army military personnel procurement, has departed for a tour of duty in the Far East Command.

■ ANDREWS AFB, D. C. The Officers' Wives' Club will hold their regular monthly meeting 29 Oct. at the Officers' Club.

The program for the day will be a luncheon at one-thirty, followed by a fall flower show where ribbons and a special award will be given for the best displays. Since the program chairman, Mrs. Nicolaus Gaynos, is a flower arranging instructor and has been conducting classes for club members, this show promises to be a most interesting and colorful entertainment, club officers relate.

LT. GEN. JOHN E. DAHLQUIST, left, Chief of Army Field Forces, accepts from Brig. Gen. Johan Daniels, right, Inspector of Transportation for the Royal Netherlands Army, a portrait of the Royal Family of Netherlands, which will be added to the collection of foreign sovereign portraits in the Ft. Monroe Officers' Casemate Mess.

■ SAN DIEGO, CALIF. A wonderful welcome awaited a little four-year-old German boy who arrived by Scandinavian plane on 29 Sept. At the airport to meet him were Maj. and Mrs. Morris A. Lent and their small daughter, Hedvig, of Coronado. The blond, blue-eyed boy had come from an orphanage in Mannheim, and arrangements for his adoption by the Lents had been made through the State Department with friends, Maj. J. P. O'Connor, jr., USA, and Mrs. O'Connor acting as intermediaries. The little boy will be known as Gunther Siebig Lent.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. Earl E. Stone have moved into a residence on Point Loma. Adm. Stone has just returned to the States after service on the staff of the Joint U. S.-European command and Mrs. Stone was privileged to accompany him for his travels on the continent. Also traveling are Col. Floyd Bennett, USMC, ret., and Mrs. Bennett who left on 28 Sept. for Guadalajara, Mex. They will take over a furnished house now occupied by another retired Marine officer and his wife, Lt. Col. and Mrs. M. S. Rahiser who, in turn, are returning to their San Diego home after a lengthy sojourn south of the border.

■ KANSAS CITY, MO. Maj. William Hunter has been relieved of his assignment with Headquarters, Central ADF and reassigned to the 12th Air Force in Europe. He has been serving as Ground Electronics Inspector with the CADF Air Inspector's office.

■ CAMP POLK, LA. Lt. Col. Clifford Van Sickle has succeeded Lt. Col. George H. Nesbitt as executive officer of the 147th Infantry Regiment, 37th Infantry Division. Colonel Van Sickle has just completed a tour of duty as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Alaska. Colonel Nesbitt will take over the duties as First Battalion Commander of the 147th.

■ FT. MONROE, VA. Col. John Hinton has retired after 34 years service. With Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Chief of Army Field Forces, and other general of-

■ FT. SAM HOUSTON, TEX. The monthly luncheon of the Medical Field Service School's Officers' Wives' club was held Friday, 9 Oct.

Mrs. William E. Shambora, wife of the CG of Brooke Army Medical Center, was guest of honor.

Feature of the luncheon was a style show. Mrs. William Woodruff was in charge of the models, who included Mesdames James L. Snyder, Carl J. Lind, Jr., Glenn C. Irving, Ralph D. Arnold, John D. Flintjer, Adam E. Adams, Donald Brook, and Scott H. Davis. Susan Creman, Ginger Smith, and Charlotte Ann Koch represented the younger set.

■ ORLEANS, FRANCE. The fall "Hospitality Committee" of the Officers' Wives Club completed plans at its recent meeting to visit 40 newly arrived families.

Because all dependent families live in French houses in a widely separated area, the "Orientation" and help in getting new families settled is a complicated process.

Mrs. O. Q. Matteson, Committee Chairman, says, "We try to answer any and all questions that a stranger in Orleans would ask—everything from cleaning facilities to where to buy furniture, or how to take a train to Paris."

Members of the Committee include Mesdames E. H. De Soucey, R. C. Fuller, D. G. Ift, B. M. Jacobs, F. R. Johnston, V. Y. Jones, J. W. Kahn, R. H. Kyckelhahn, W. B. McCrary, R. W. May, C. Solomon, L. E. Stutman, W. McCain, W. J. Whelen, T. E. Fury, C. W. Schultz, Jr., E. A. Owsley, J. T. West, G. W. Spurgeon, J. A. Hanksen and Miss Susie Slaughter.

AN AIR BASE AT LAST

■ SAMPSON AFB, N. Y. Sampson became an "airbase" in the truest sense of the word, at 6:25 P.M., 22 Sept. when the first plane, the L-20 liaison model, landed at the new base landing strip.

Passengers in the plane were Lt. Gen. Robert W. Harper, Air Training Command commander, and Maj. Gen. Richard G. Lindsay, base commander.

The first flight, which brought General Harper here on a routine inspection mission, removed from Sampson its "distinction" of being the only Air Force base without a landing field.

The new air strip which will be completely opened in November is located opposite the base hospital area. Five thousand feet long, it is covered with asphalt.

■ AUBURN GENERAL DEPOT, WASH. Col. Michael A. Quinn, Commanding Officer, and Mrs. Quinn entertained at a cocktail party 25 Sept., in honor of their son, Lt. Michael H. Quinn and his wife, who are visiting them prior to their departure for assignments in the Far East Command. Mrs. Quinn is a lieutenant in the Army Nurse Corps. They both reported at Camp Stoneman on 3 Oct.

The marriage of Lt. Quinn and the former Regina Agnes McLaughlin was solemnized at her home in Cambridge, Massachusetts on 18 July.

On 24 Sept., Capt. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Edgar entertained at a buffet supper in honor of the couple. Other guests included Colonel and Mrs. Quinn, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Henry S. Kostanski, Lt. Col. William J. Gorman, the Misses Mary Ellen and Pa-

■ HDQS. THIRD ARMY, FT. MCPHERSON, GA. Members of the Woman's Club received a personal welcome from Third Army Commander, Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, at their first luncheon meeting of the season on 6 Oct.

Presiding officers of the club are Mrs. W. H. McNaul, president; Mrs. A. R. Bolling, honorary president; Mrs. M. W. Phillips, vice-president; Mrs. C. A. Holder, treasurer; Mrs. T. J. Bowen, recording secretary, and Mrs. W. M. Coeyman, corresponding secretary.

Honored guests were Mrs. Charles D. W. Canham, Mrs. E. T. Williams, and Mrs. Louis W. Truman.

■ CAMP ATTERBURY, IND. Col. Joseph B. Daugherty, who has served as commanding officer of the Quartermaster Replacement Training Center at Ft. Lee, Va., for the past year, became deputy post commander 2 Oct.

Before taking command of the QM RTC last 9 Nov., Colonel Daugherty had served with the American Military Advisory Group to the Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa.

ATOM WORK HONORED

■ DENVER, COLO. Col. George E. Burritt, Chief, Colorado Military District, was awarded the Legion of Merit 18 Sept. for meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service with the Atomic Energy Commission's nuclear and thermonuclear tests at Eniwetok last year.

Brig. Gen. Paul I. Robinson, C. G. of Fitzsimons Army Hospital, presented the award to Colonel Burritt. Colonel Burritt received the award for outstanding service from 30 Nov. 1951 to 18 Nov. 1952 while serving as commander of Task Group 132.2, Joint Task Force 132 at Eniwetok Atoll, Marshall Islands. His group was responsible for operation of facilities on the island, support of Atomic Energy Commission Contractors, including port and transportation facilities; communication facilities to the United States; security of the Atoll and other miscellaneous activities which pertain to an island garrison.

■ FT. RICARDSON, ALASKA. Military personnel, dependents, and civil service workers at Fort Richardson, Alaska, have combined to form the cast of the forthcoming production of "Pure as the Driven Snow," which will premiere at the 5005th Hospital on 23 Oct.

Additional performances are slated at the post theatre on the following two days and at Elmendorf Air Force Base on the 29th. Many civilian actresses from near-by Anchorage will also appear in the melodrama. Director of the play is Pfc Ben Tatar, 1953 winner of the U. S. Army Alaska One-Act Play Contest.

To add flavor to a campaign to raise funds for the annual Christmas party for the children of Fort Richardson, the NCO Wives club purchased and completely outfitted a doll, which will be awarded a lucky donee to the fund. Mrs. Roy Morrow received the first donation to the fund from Mrs. Barney A. Daughtry, wife of the Post Commander, at a tea in her honor at the NCO club recently. Among those present were: Mrs. Sarah Daughtry, mother of the Post Commander; Mrs. George Gray, NCO Wives president, and Mrs. Ariel H. Achtermann, wife of the Post Chaplain.

■ AUGUSTA ARSENAL, GA. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry Mobley visited Col. and Mrs. W. H. Dawson, Jr. at the Arsenal. Colonel and Mrs. Mobley have just returned to the U. S. from assignment in Heidelberg, Germany.

■ WEST POINT, N. Y. To honor the departing members and welcome the new members of the Hospital Staff, the officers and ladies of the Army Hospital USMA entertained with dinner at Round Pond, 25 Sept. Those leaving for other stations were Capt. and Mrs. E. R. Seltz, Lt. and Mrs. I. B. Eskind, Capt. Margaret Knox, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. P. Krish. The new arrivals were Capt. and Mrs. H. L. Baker, Capt. and Mrs. B. F. Smith, Capt. and Mrs. N. E. Wright, Capt. G. N. Bowen, 1st Lt. and Mrs. P. C. Dykstra, Maj. and Mrs. K. E. Baker, Capt. and Mrs. Harold Conrad, Jr., Lt. and Mrs. C. S. Richter, Maj. and Mrs. J. W. Vance, Capt. I. S. Rojalla, Capt. C. M. Liedtke, Lt. E. F. Gubies, Lt. and Mrs. G. R. Smith.

Mr. Carl Reed of Nyack, N. Y., who has held during the past year classes for those interested in painting, was the guest of Mrs. Marshall Nolan, Friday afternoon, 25 Sept. Mr. Reed was on the post in connection with the continuation of his art classes, which are held in the evening to accommodate the men who are interested. His classes are open to all of the Post personnel.

Arriving recently on the S. S. Ryndam from a month's tour of Europe, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Mayer are back at West Point. While in Europe they spent time in Italy, Switzerland and France. They stopped for a visit in Geneva with Mr. Mayer's daughter, Mrs. Ainsworth Johnstone and later in the Chateau country in France, they stayed with Madame Emmanuel Tillet, daughter of the great organist, Marcel Dupré. Mr. Mayer had been a pupil of Mr. Dupré's in former years. Later, the Mayers renewed acquaintance with the great Dupré, himself, who is at present the Professor of Organ at the Conservatoire in Paris.

General James Clinton Camp of Heroes of '76 held a bivaque at West Point Army Mess on Monday, 21 Sept. Col. Dallas Knoll, USA-Ret. of Winter Park, Florida was guest speaker. Colonel Knoll is National Third Vice President of National Sojourners. At this meeting the following officers were elected for the coming year:

Lt. Col. P. O. Evans, Commander; Maj. W. W. McKinney, Chief of Staff; and Lt. Col. C. S. Quick, Adjutant.

The General James Clinton Camp of Heroes of '76 was organized at West Point in 1932 under the sponsorship of the West Point Chapter No. 344, National Sojourners. The Camp was named for General Clinton, who heroically defended the West Point area during the War for Independence.

■ ARMY WAR COLLEGE, CARLISLE BARRACKS, PA. The Officers' Wives Club held its monthly luncheon on 6 Oct. Mrs. Verdi B. Barnes, President, presided. Mrs. D. P. Armstrong, Program Chairman, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Dorothy E. Derr, President of the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen, who explained Pennsylvania Dutch Art. Mrs. W. P. Yarrowburgh and Mrs. C. A. Beall, Jr. were in charge of arrangements for the luncheon. Mrs. D. H. Heyne and Mrs. J. A. Berry, Jr. decorated the luncheon tables in a Pennsylvania Dutch art motif. Those who assisted during the afternoon were the Mesdames: J. C. Welborn, W. A. Downing, Jr., R. M. Williams, D. C. Wallace, R. H. Adams, J. M. Palmer, S. Gruber and G. T. Phillips.

Army Loses 33-20

Army suffered its first loss of the season last week-end against a powerful Northwestern team, 33-20.

Early in the opening period, Cadet Freddy Attaya got off a 77-yard quick kick, Northwestern was forced to punt on fourth down and Army took over on the Northwestern 33. Eight plays later, Cadet Pat Uebel ran around end to the goal where he fumbled, but Jerry Hagan recovered and Army took the lead. The score remained 7-0, Army, at the end of the period.

In the first five minutes of the second quarter, Northwestern scored twice. Army made a 63-yard scoring march, with Hagan sneaking over from one-foot out; Northwestern chalked up a fourth touchdown and the half ended with a score 20-14, Northwestern.

Each team scored one touchdown in the third period. Don Holleder took an eight-yard toss from Pete Vann for what proved to be the Cadets' final score of the game. The period ended 27-20, Northwestern, and the Wildcats added six more points in the final period while holding Army scoreless.

Adm. Conolly Tells Naval War College Role

group of full time civilian professors in military history, social sciences and international law attached to the staff.

Learning through individual initiative and decision always has been given great emphasis at the College, but with it in recent years increasing stress has been placed upon conference or group discussions. This technique is not pursued haphazardly, however, but only after all students are given careful instruction by highly qualified experts in how best they can work with a group. Realistic approaches to naval problems that do or might affect the other services, and the quick correction of viewpoints or factors reviewed in problems considered by the students, are advantages accruing from this practice. It is recognized that study of the multitudinous factors now applicable to warfare without actual application of that knowledge to specific problems, is meaningless. It is, perhaps, for this reason that for the professional advancement of an officer the Naval War College for many years has topped, and still is the apex of, the Navy's educational program. He learns by practice as well as by theory. His knowledge is sound.

Study Courses

Broadly speaking the Naval War College conducts two types of courses: Resident and Correspondent. Both types are under constant scrutiny for improvement, for timeliness, new objectives and ultimate benefits to the Naval Service and to the students.

There are several different courses in each type. The basis for all at the Naval War College, however, are those of Strategy and Tactics and Strategy and Logistics. Although both are based on the study of strategy, the primary difference in these two, in which the greater proportion of the students are enrolled, is in the fact that one stresses tactics, and the other logistics. In each of the courses, and including Command and Staff, Advanced Study in Strategy and Sea Power, and the Flag Officers' Refresher course, the students

AF Society Fund Aids

College Educations

Brig. Gen. A. E. Jones, USAF-Ret., Air Force Aid Society Secretary, reported this week that the General Henry H. Arnold Educational Fund is sponsoring 24 students in college for the school year 1953-54.

In addition to those sponsored this year, 21 others have been assisted in prior years.

Assistance given by the Educational Fund is in the form of a loan or a grant or a combination of both. Loans are to be repaid without interest by the student after graduation.

Of the 24 students being assisted this year 18 are girls and 6 are boys. The fathers of 9 of these children are deceased officers, 3 are children of deceased non-commissioned officers, 3 are children of officers on active duty, and there are 8 whose fathers are non-commissioned officers on active duty. One student's father is a retired officer.

When the WW II children become of college age, it is estimated that approximately 125 students each year will make application for assistance. It is believed that that number of scholarships can be handled adequately, General Jones said.

Col. Roosma Ft. Jav Denuty

Col. John S. Roosma, Chief of First Army Information Section, has been appointed Deputy Post Commander of Ft. Jay, N. Y., to succeed Col. Creswell G. Blakenev, who has been assigned Chief of the New York Office of the Inspector General.

Colonel Roosma, who came to Governor's Island from the Seventh Army in Europe, was Provost Marshal of the First Army from 1946 to 1950.

During WW II, he commanded the first student training regiment at Ft. Benning, Ga., and subsequently was placed in command of the 334th Infantry Regiment in France. Later, he was appointed Provost Marshal of the Delta Base at Marseilles, France.

Correspondence Courses

The Correspondence courses parallel the key courses of Strategy and Tactics, and Strategy and Logistics, as far as practicable. In addition International Law and Advanced International Law is offered. Reserve Officers are encouraged to take these courses.

A Research and Analysis Department was established within the past few years to keep the War College generally informed of the broader aspects of the national research and analysis program with special attention to promising developments believed to have strategic, logistic, tactical or important operational significance; and also to keep under continuing analysis the impact of new scientific developments on the future trend of naval warfare. The department also undertakes to monitor limited research into naval strategy, logistics, and related tactics which are being conducted by outside agencies.

The opportunity for study, for forming and voicing opinion, for evaluating ideas with officers of the other services, and for learning the art of reasoning, planning and executing effective tactical and strategic naval warfare plans and procedures, highlight the leadership of the Naval War College in the Navy's educational program.

Comdr. Fullaway Reports

Comdr. Frank L. Fullaway, USN, has reported to the Operations division on the staff of Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, Commander in Chief, U. S. Atlantic Fleet at Norfolk, Va., as Shipping Control Officer. He formerly was Commanding Officer of the escort destroyer USS Murray.

Mrs. Beatrice Ayer Patton

Mrs. Beatrice Ayer Patton, 67, widow of General George S. Patton, Jr., USA, died on 30 Sept. 1953, at Hampton, Mass., when she was thrown from her horse during a drag hunt.

The gifted wife of the World War II Third Army Commander was well known throughout military circles, and her skill as a horsewoman was widely acclaimed. She also had earned a reputation as a skilled writer and had published one historical novel, "Blood of the Sharks"; an autobiography, "War As I Knew It," and several short stories.

Born at Beverly Farms, Mass., in 1886, she was married at 24 to General Patton, one year after his graduation from West Point. She had devoted much of her Army life to the Service wives' clubs and, during WWII, drew up a code for Army wives whose husbands were serving overseas, stressing the need to maintain a normal home and to write cheerful letters and bolster morale wherever possible.

General Patton died on 21 Dec. 1945, following injuries which he received in an automobile collision in Germany. He was buried in the military cemetery at Hamm in Luxembourg.

Survivors include a son, Lt. Col. George S. Patton, 3d, USA, assigned to duty in Korea and now on leave in Tokyo; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Ellen Totten, wife of Lt. Col. James K. Totten, USA; her father, Fred Ayer of Beverly Farms, Mass., and her brother, Frederick Ayer of Boston. Another daughter, Beatrice, wife of Brig. Gen. John K. Waters, USA, died last year.

Mrs. Johanna Ryan

Mrs. Johanna Ryan, 76, mother of Monsignor (Brig. Gen.) Patrick J. Ryan, Deputy Chief of Chaplains of the Army, died at Walter Reed Hospital on 4 October 1953, after an illness of four months.

Born in Ontario, Canada, Mrs. Ryan had been a widow for many years. She was well known throughout the Army, and had accompanied Chaplain Ryan on his assignments to various posts in the United States and Hawaii, where she became a great friend of the soldiers, particularly enlisted men.

She spent much of her time visiting and comforting the sick and wounded in Army hospitals, and writing letters to the mothers of "her boys." The soldiers, in turn, grew to love her for her many kindnesses and great generosity.

Mrs. Ryan was a member of the Order of St. Francis.

Monsignor Ryan was the celebrant at the solemn requiem High Mass at Memorial Chapel, Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., on 6 Oct. He was assisted by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John K. Ryan of Catholic University, Chaplain (Maj.) William Fitzgerald, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Joseph Chmielewski and Chaplain (Comdr.) Francis McGann. The choir from the Augustinian Seminary chanted the mass, following which the Rt. Rev. Joseph Gedra gave the absolution. Pallbearers were Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Harold O. Prudell, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Charles Murphy, Chaplain (Comdr.) Joseph Manion, Chaplain (Col.) Frank Tobey and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Charles E. Brown.

Burial was in the Catholic Cemetery at Litchfield, Minn.

Capt. Charles Franklin Fletter, USA-Ret.

Funeral services for Capt. Charles Franklin Fletter, USA-Ret., were held in the Chapel of the U. S. Naval Hospital, Corona, Calif., 5 Sept.

Chaplain Charles F. Graeser, USA-Ret., close personal friend of Captain Fletter, conducted the final service. Burial was in Ft. Rosecrans National Cemetery, San Diego. Captain Fletter, who died 3 Sept. at the Corona Naval Hospital was born in 1874 and retired from the Army in 1937 after 23 years service including two wars: the Spanish American as a member of the 5th Infantry, California National Guard and WWI on the Mexican Border as a Captain in the Corps of Engineers.

While stationed in Hawaii 1923-1927, Captain Fletter commanded the Kilauea Military Camp where he began the construction of the present permanent camp. He next was assigned to Ft. Douglas, Utah where, as Constructing Quartermaster, he supervised the building of Red Butte Dam, the present water supply for Fort Douglas.

Following this he was stationed in Panama, at Fort Worden, Wash. and March Field, Calif. At the latter station, he was responsible for the construction of the present officers' club, many of the present quarters and a portion of the landing field.

He is survived by his widow, Laura-Jo Fletter of 385 Hawthorne Road, Laguna Beach, Calif., his son Col. Randolph W. Fletter, USA, and three grandchildren.

Maj. Walter S. Parkins, USA

Maj. Walter S. Parkins, USA, 38, died after a brief illness on 29 Sept. 1953, at Fort Gulick, Panama, C. Z.

Major Parkins, son of William S. and Mattie G. Parkins of Annington, Dickerson, Md., was born at Middleburg, Va. During WW II he served in Europe and the Philippines and was awarded the Silver Star, the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantry Badge.

After the war he served as an operations officer with the U. S. Constabulary in Germany, later with the 3d Cavalry Regiment at Ft. Meade, Md., and was on the staff at The Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga., prior to going to Panama a year and a half ago.

In addition to his parents, Major Parkins is survived by his wife, Lois Slane Parkins, formerly of Severna Park, Md., and two small children, Walter S., Jr., and Kathleen, who resided in Panama with him. Also surviving are the following brothers and a sister: Dr. John A. Parkins, Woodbury, N. J.; Maj. William S. Parkins, Jr., USA in Korea, Isabel, wife of Frank J. Suto, Silver Spring, Md.; Maj. James F. Parkins, USA, Korea, and Robert I. Parkins, Dickerson, Md.

Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery; final arrangements await the arrival of Major Parkins' remains from Panama.

Capt. H. C. Dorrien, USA

Capt. Hugh C. Dorrien, Jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Hugh C. Dorrien of Boise, Idaho, recently died of injuries received when he was struck by a vehicle on 29 Aug., while on duty with the U. N. Korean Advisory Group.

Captain Dorrien was born in Soda Springs, Idaho, on 22 Feb. 1920, and was graduated from high school in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. He served in the European and Middle Eastern theaters during World War II, and as a member of the Army of Occupation commanded a guard unit at the Nuremberg war trials. Among the decorations he received during World War II were the Croix de Guerre and the Presidential Unit Citation ribbon.

Discharged in 1947, he reenlisted as a master sergeant, and was returned to active duty as a first lieutenant. Following graduation from the Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga., in May 1953, he was assigned to Korea and served with the Fifth Regimental Combat team until the armistice and was then transferred to the advisory group.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by his wife, Gladys Wehrer Dorrien of Gregory, S. Dak., and a sister, Miss Gaynor Dorrien of Honolulu, T. H.

Attends AAMC Meeting

Rear Adm. Clarence J. Brown, MC, USN, Deputy Surgeon General and Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, will represent the Navy at the 64th Annual Meeting of the Association of American Medical Colleges, meeting in Atlantic City, N. J., 26-28 Oct.

Capt. Cecil L. Andrews, MC, USN, Head of the Training Branch, Professional Division, also will attend.

their commanders as "highly outstanding," could not be chosen from the world-wide competition for the "five per cent" promotion limitation.

Army officials have indicated that some promotions to captain and major are possible late this month, with initial increments by early November seen a good bet. First promotions to lieutenant colonel may be announced next month.

Nothing has been said officially as to the possible number of promotions. Some unofficial estimates have placed the figure at more than 7000.

U. S. COAST GUARD

REAR Adm. Louis W. Perkins, 59, has assumed command of the 13th Coast Guard District at Seattle, Wash.

A 1918 Coast Guard Academy graduate, and public relations officer at Coast Guard Headquarters from 1935 to 1936, he commanded the transport Hunter Liggett during WW II.

Admiral Perkins' last assignment was commander of the 14th Coast Guard District at Honolulu.

Academy Competition

The Coast Guard has released Personnel Circular No. 26-53 which gives eligibility requirements and procedure in making applications for enlisted personnel who want to compete for appointment to the U. S. Coast Guard Academy.

Temporary I.D. Cards

Personnel Circular 25-53 tells details concerning a uniform temporary identification for Coast Guard officers and enlisted men. It was stated that in most instances a 10-day expiration date should be adequate.

Hawker Siddeley Group Visits U. S. Air Officials

A dozen top-flight British aircraft manufacturing executives and designers arrived in this country Tuesday for a ten-day visit in the United States and Canada.

The group, members of the Hawker Siddeley Group Design Council, met Air Force and Naval aviation officials at the Pentagon 7 and 8 Oct. and exchanged aviation view and news.

After a tour of several U. S. aircraft plants, the group will proceed to Canada where they will stay for the remainder of their visit.

This country is currently producing several planes based on British models, including the modified Canberra jet bomber and the J-65 and J-67 jet engines, which are the transplanted British Sapphire and Olympus engines. The jet engine itself is a British importation.

While in Washington, members of the group were guests at an Aviation Writers Association luncheon. The visitors were introduced by Charles H. Campbell, Director, British Information Service.

Sir Frank Spriggs, the groups managing director, praised Anglo-American co-operation in air research and development, and said that in event of war, "anything we have should be yours, and vice versa."

Members of the Design Council are:

Sir Frank Spencer Spriggs, K.B.E., Hon. F.R.Ae.S., (Chairman of Council), Managing Director, Hawker Siddeley Group Ltd., 18 St. James's Square, London, S.W.1.

Sir Roy H. Dobson, C.B.E., J.P., F.R.Ae.S., Managing Director, A. V. Roe & Co. Ltd., Greengate, Middleton, Manchester.

Sir Sydney Camm, C.B.E., F.R.Ae.S., (President-Elect of Royal Aeronautical Society), Director and Chief Designer, Hawker Aircraft Limited, Canbury Park Road, Kingston-on-Thames, Surrey.

Mr. W. G. Carter, C.B.E., F.R.Ae.S., Technical Director, Gloster Aircraft Co., Ltd., Hucclecote, Gloucestershire.

Mr. S. D. Davies, B.Sc.Eng., F.R.Ae.S., Chief Designer, A. V. Roe & Co., Ltd., Greengate, Middleton, Manchester.

Sir Wm. Farren, C.B.E., M.B.E., M.A., F.R.S., F.R.Ae.S., M.I.Mech.E., (President of Royal Aeronautical Society), Technical Director, A. V. Roe & Co., Ltd., Greengate, Middleton, Manchester.

Mr. Reginald Jones, M.Sc., Chief Metallurgist, High Duty Alloys Ltd., Buckingham Avenue, Slough, Bucks.

Mr. W. H. Lindsey, M.A., F.R.Ae.S., Director and Chief Engineer, Armstrong Siddeley Motors Ltd., Coventry.

Mr. J. Lloyd, F.R.Ae.S., Technical Director, Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth Aircraft Ltd., Baginton, Coventry.

Dr. L. W. J. Newman, B.Sc., Ph.D., Chief Engineer (Armaments), Armaments Division, Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth Aircraft Ltd., Baginton, Coventry.

Mr. W. Sexton, M.B.E., Director and General Manager, Armstrong Siddeley Motors Ltd., Coventry.

Mr. R. W. Walker, D.I.P.L.Eng., F.R.Ae.S., Chief Designer, Gloster Aircraft Co., Ltd., Hucclecote, Gloucestershire.

Mr. H. R. Watson, B.Sc., A.F.R.Ae.S., Chief Designer (Aircraft), Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth Aircraft Ltd., Baginton, Coventry.

Service Men Establish New Investment Corp.

An investment corporation catering chiefly to Service personnel and headed by a group of retired and former servicemen has been established with headquarters in New York City.

The main functions of the new company, known as Janaf, Inc., are to invest subscribed sums in properties including real estate, and to provide financial assistance and advice to shareholders in organizing private business ventures.

"In the attainment of these objectives," a company spokesman said, "the Board of Directors will have the benefit of expert legal and financial counsel. The investors, who will be for the most part servicemen, will be represented on the Board of Directors, when fully established, by one officer and one enlisted man from each service."

Currently authorized to issue $300,000 in securities, Janaf eventually hopes to expand to the point where area offices can be established throughout the world.

A company spokesman offered the following as the main objectives:

- 1) To offer safe investments in sound projects which have steady income plus capital gains through appreciation of Janaf's common shares by retirement of preferred, earnings, enhancement and other related factors.
- 2) To refrain from soliciting funds at the expense of, or that would sustain a loss in, other investments already owned by the prospect.
- 3) To help the individual handle his funds intelligently and profitably.
- 4) To hold out no unrealistic promises that would be impossible to fulfill.

Officers and directors of Janaf are: President and director, James K. Beazley, former Naval officer and industrial engineer who has been associated with the U. S. Steel Corporation, the Reynolds Metal Company and the Mergenthaler Linotype Company; Vice president and director, Capt. Malcolm W. Pemberton, USN, Officer-in-Charge, NROA, Seattle, Wash.; Treasurer and director, Thomas J. O'Connor, a member of the Fleet Reserve Association who will complete 22 years service in the Navy in December; Secretary, Lester D. Burton, former British Royal Air Force Officer, presently vice-president of Whitney-Phoenix Company, Inc., and secretary of Selevison, Inc.; Assistant treasurer and assistant secretary, and Morton G. Millstein, comptroller for Whitney-Phoenix Company, Inc.

Other directors include Brig. Gen. Ray A. Dunn, USAF (Ret.), presently associated with Allied Public Relations Associates, Inc., of 1625 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. who will handle sales and public relations for Janaf; Rear Adm. Harry B. Jarrett, Deputy Naval Inspector General; Strabo V. Claggett, former Naval Ensign, currently president of Whitney-Phoenix Company, Inc., director of Blue Ridge Natural Gas and Oil Corp., and a director of Selevison, Inc.

Brig. Gen. Thomas G. McFarland, USMC, has been named Assistant Commanding General, Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C.

Dish Fund Is Out

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has told the Services that they cannot use appropriated funds for supply and replacement of table linens, dishes, glassware, silver and kitchen utensils in the residence or quarters on shore of Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps officers.

These exceptions are provided: field messes established by tactical organizations engaged in field training or operations and messes temporarily established ashore for a period of not more than six consecutive months to provide for special military requirements.

The Secretary's directive was in conformance with action taken by the 83d Congress.

62d Troop Carrier Squad, Flies 3000-Mile Trip

A 3,000 mile round trip formation flight from Japan to the Philippines has been successfully completed by the 62d Troop Carrier Squadron, it was announced this week. The flight, it was announced, was the first long distance formation mission by Fairchild C-119's in the Far East.

The Squadron of 15 Flying Boxcars completed the 1,600 mile flight from Japan to Clark Field in the Philippines in 10 hours and 45 minutes.

The formation of C-119's returned to Japan via Okinawa. The performance of the C-119's brought high praise from the squadron commander, Lt. Col. Hollis Tara, who remarked, "We are pleased and proud of the present high combat potential of the squadron. The recent operational readiness test proved that we are 100 per cent qualified for mass airborne operations . . . the flight to Clark Air Force Base and return proved that we are capable of moving long distances and mounting a maximum effort without interruption of daily operations."

The flight was carried out to test the operational readiness of the squadron and determining accurate fuel consumption data as well as other facts regarding long-distance cargo operations. It was also a test of maintenance of the ships and a mission to build confidence in long range flights.

Tank Stretch-Out

Plans for a stretch-out of tank production at the Chrysler Delaware Tank Plant, assuring continued operation of the plant through 1954, are announced by Robert T. Keller, Chrysler Corporation vice president and general manager of tank manufacturing operations.

The plans drawn up by Chrysler officials, were approved by Army Ordnance in Detroit.

Under the new program, a tank modification depot now under construction in Newark, Delaware, by Chrysler for the Army will be completed and used for storage of suppliers' machine tools. Processing and modification of tanks, previously planned for the depot, will be carried on in the tank plant in conjunction with the stretch-out of tank production.

Earlier plans had called for a complete close-out of tank production at the plant by April 1954.

promotion to major who will complete 14 years promotion list service prior to 1 Jan. 1955 will be submitted to the board for consideration.

The "best qualified" method will be used in considering nurses through Eleanor Cassidy, 20954W, and WMS officers through Sue W. Moore, 21186W for promotion to permanent major.

The Air Force said that failure of selection for promotion of Nurse and WMS officers to lieutenant colonel and major will not count as "pass overs" under provisions of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947.

Lt. Col. Howard F. Schiltz Wins Winged Wheel Golf

One hundred and twenty personnel connected with military or civilian transportation attended the semi-annual Winged Wheel Golf Tournament sponsored by the Army Transportation Corps and held at the Army-Navy Country Club on 24 Sept. Presentation of trophies and prizes were made by Brig. Gen. Paul F. Yount, Acting Chief of Transportation.

Lt. Col. Howard F. Schiltz was the medalist trophy winner for the group consisting of the civilian personnel of the Office of the Chief of Transportation and all TC officers. Lt. Col. Russell W. Humphreys had the second low gross score.

The winner of the medalist trophy for participants connected with other Government agencies and commercial transportation was Mr. Frank Battista, a civilian employee of the Marine Corps. Mr. J. Bracy of the Hampton Roads Port of Embarkation took the runner-up honors.

Among the handicapped scores, trophies were awarded to the five flight divisions. Mr. Sam Lewis, of Fruit Growers Express, won the Championship Flight while Major W. H. Boyd of TC was the runner-up. Mr. A. G. Liebler and Col. E. L. Rehmann, both of TC, were winner and runner-up respectively of the first flight. Second flight winner, Mr. Earl N. Chandler and the runner-up, Mr. Duncan Rose, were also both from the Office of the Chief of Transportation. Mr. Glenn W. Deering of TC won the third flight, with Mr. Richard M. Cornell of the New York Central Railroad as runner-up. Fourth flight winners were Lt. Colonel Norman H. Gold and Major John C. Murray, both of TC.

In the special prize category, Lt. Col. John M. Rice drove the ball on his tee-off shot, approximately 275 yards to win the event for the longest drive made on the 13th hole during the tournament play. Rear Adm. Jack Phillips (Ret.) made the nearest drive to a hole-in-one on the 18th green. The player having the most five (s) strokes per hole was Lt. Col. Thomas L. Harrigan.

Attack Sub To GenDynamics

The Navy announced this week that construction of the new attack submarine authorized in the 1954 shipbuilding program will be awarded to the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp., Groton, Conn. The award is subject to satisfactory negotiations with that firm.

All other ship construction in the 1954 program was announced previously with the exception of one attack cargo ship (AKA), for which the contract award still remains to be made.

Select Marine Colonels

The Marine Corps this week announced the selection of 26 officers for promotion to colonel.

Two of the group, Colonels Walter F. Layer and Hamilton M. Hoyer, already are serving in that rank. As former USMCR officers who integrated into the Regular service, they previously had been considered for promotion by a statutory board.

Of the remaining officers, one was selected from above the promotion zone and 23 were selected from within the zone. Six of the group are Naval Aviators and two are SDO officers.

They are:

JCS Force Report

Force strength, the Joint Chiefs are reported to have scaled down the number of wings—probably by between five and 10—which the Air Force said should be in operation in fiscal '55.

Now that the JCS has submitted its anxiously awaited report, it will be up to Defense Secretary Wilson and two of his principal Assistant Secretaries to hammer out the details in terms of money and men.

If Mr. Wilson O.K.'s the JCS recommendations for force-level objectives, Assistant Secretary W. J. McNeil then would go to work and translate these requirements into budget dollars.

At the same time, Assistant Secretary John A. Hannah would report on the manpower needed in the separate Services to man such a fighting force.

Status Quo Presumed

The JCS recommendations presumably are made on the assumption that something like the present status quo would continue in Korea—that is the absence of hostilities but the necessity for ceaseless combat readiness in that area and an adequate ZI back-up.

The fiscal 1954 budget provides for an Air Force of 110 or 114 wings with 960,000 officers and men. Congress voted $11.1 billion for the Air Force.

The current Army budget of $12.9 billion provides for 20 combatant divisions, with a total strength of about 1,500,000 (originally set to drop to 1,370,000 with a truce in Korea).

The Navy has budget provision for 408 warships and 16 carrier air groups with about 750,000 officers and men. For the Navy and Marine Corps, Congress voted $9.4 billion.

The Marine Corps fiscal '54 budget provides for three divisions and three air wings with a strength of about 245,000 men.

Fiscal '54 Strength

Total Armed Forces strength in the fiscal '54 estimates called for 3,356,000 men as of 30 June 1954 with a reduction to 3,300,000 "if hostilities cease in Korea."

With the current drive on economy and efficiency, and should hostilities not break out anew, the 3,300,000 figure—or probably even less personnel—possibly as low as an even 3,000,000, may wind up as the fiscal '55 manpower strength.

In connection with current budget activity, it is relevant to note that at a press conference this week Secretary Wilson said that air defense activities might be increased in the neighborhood of $500,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

This would mean an increase in the Air Defense Command and also an increase in the number of Army anti-aircraft battalions.

With the JCS report at hand, the budget work now will begin in earnest, as efforts are made to get facts and figures to the Bureau of the Budget as quickly as possible.
